Teachers Give Students Income Tax Hike Views

Teachers in Sikeston public schools have been giving students during classes their recommendations on a state income tax increase. The increase was voted by the state legislature last year but delayed in application.

The proposal provides for increased state aid to schools, and teacher organizations have given it vigorous support. Teacher salaries would be affected.

The tax increase did not become effective because State Sen. Ear Blackwell, Hillsboro Democrat, initiated a successful referendum petition drive calling for a statewide vote on the proposal. April 7 has been set as the election date.

Both Supt. of Schools Lynn Twitty and his administrative assistant, Harold Vogel, said they condone teacher instruction on the increase if the matter did not take up the majority of classroom time and depending on circumstances regarding how the subject was brought up.

Twitty said probably some individual teachers have "told students of the necessity of the increase if we maintain certain programs."

Blackwell's move to get the measure on the ballot could postpone tax collections for an indefinite period, possibly to defeat the tax increase cuts in both academic and extracurricular activities. He is confirming teacher classroom discussion of the tax proposal.

Twitty and Vogel said teachers have the right as individual citizens to give their views on school time when teachers are in the classroom to teach history, mathematics or English.

"We cannot propagandize," Twitty said. "They (the teachers) have the right to do this if they just put out information. This is a matter of information."

Vogel admitted that on one occasion he confronted a Sikeston R-6 patron about the issue during school hours.

It was brought out during a school board meeting Tuesday afternoon that school personnel attended a meeting at the Ramada Inn last week on the tax matter.

Board President Bob Mitchell told Twitty and Vogel that some people are saying "you are being used by Governor Hearnes and Cantrell for political purposes." E. J. Cantrell, a state representative, and Governor Warren E. Hearnes, are both advocates of the tax increase.

Vogel said they would not be taking an interest in the matter if "we thought politics" was involved.

The meeting at the Ramada Inn was held to discuss validity of signatures on petitions calling for a referendum on the tax increase in the 10th district. It was reported the petitions can be disregarded if five per cent of the signatures were obtained illegally. Twitty admitted school personnel are working on the petitions, adding it is not on an official basis "but as private citizens."

He said if the tax increase is not approved, it would mean cuts in both academic and extracurricular activities. He said teachers have not been specifically instructed to give their opinions to students about the income tax increase proposal. On the question of petition validity, Twitty said, "I think we are spinning our wheels."

In Tuesday's board meeting, Vogel brought up the question whether it is fair that persons, who obtained petition signatures "can deviate from the law" and

"we cannot" in the fight against the petitions.

Several instances of illegal petition signatures and petitions were cited in the board meeting. Twitty said names of junior and senior high school students are on petitions.

Vogel estimated the Sikeston system would get $103,000 less than last year if the increase is not approved.

Twitty advised board members school administrators have been spending "a couple of days each week" in an attempt to prepare next year's budget.

"This is the worst situation I've ever seen," he said. "Other schools are saying the same thing."

He listed items to board members totaling about $140,000 that may be cut as a result of the uncertain status of the tax measure. The list included things varying from new textbooks to cuts in the music and athletic programs.

"The budgets are cut to the bone already. We need a 10 per cent increase in money just to maintain our present quality," Twitty said.

There is also the danger of losing the school's AAA rating, Twitty added.

It was estimated it would require a $5.59 school tax levy to avoid losing the programs, or a portion of the programs. Mitchell said he believes the school and school board should take a positive approach and enlist the support of the people.

The board and administrators are planning to meet Thursday with a school citizen's advisory board on the options available to avoid cutting back the school system.

Mitchell said that if the school is going to ask for any levy increase, "let's ask for a big one."

The present school tax levy is $4.19.

Harassment Charge Denied by Sheriff

EAST PRAIRIE, Mo. (AP) — The sheriff of Mississippi County denies he is harassing signers of petitions calling for a referendum on the state income tax.

Sheriff Pedro Simmons discounted the charge Monday night by state Rep. Richard M. Marshall, R-Webster Groves.

Marshall said the sheriff was going around with a notary to get signers of the petition to sign an affidavit saying they wanted their names removed from the petition.

"It's a conspiracy to deprive these people of their rights to sign a petition," said Marshall, a supporter of the drive to have the tax submitted to voters.

"I'll take care of the sheriff's office and let him take care of his office," Simmons said. "Nobody's being harassed down here. I'm an officer of the court." Simmons said some persons were checking petition signatures and it was found that some of the circulators did not actually witness persons signing the petitions. "Also there were some duplicate names and cases where wives signed for husbands," the sheriff said.

Mrs. Goldie Benson said the sheriff told her she might get into "fierce trouble," because of her having circulated petitions. She quoted him as saying: "We'll get you for perjury."

Simmons denied it. He said he did warn Mrs. Benson that someone might file suit and she might be asked in court: "Did you certify these petitions?"

Mrs. Benson describes the exchange with the sheriff in a letter to the editor on page 8 in today's newspaper.

Kirkpatrick Denies Tax Petition Tampering Claim

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — James C. Kirkpatrick, secretary of state, said today no one had an opportunity at any time to tamper with petitions calling for a referendum election on the embattled state income tax increase.

In a two-page statement, Kirkpatrick said "the petitions have been closely supervised and safeguarded by members of our staff at all times since they have been in our possession. There has been no opportunity at any time for anyone to tamper with the petitions."

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, Hillsboro, the man who headed the petition drive, charged Monday 642 petition forms were missing, including No. 1 on which his signature appeared.

"It's incredible," he said, "that the governor and his lackeys would go this far to keep the people from voting."

Blackwell accused Rep. E. J. Cantrell, House Appropriations chairman, of being the governor's "lackey who was low enough" to take some of the petitions. And he said Kirkpatrick used "very bad judgment" in allowing Cantrell and his aides to examine the petitions before they were counted.

Cantrell was not available for comment today. His legislative assistant said he was expected in the Capitol Wednesday.

Kirkpatrick countered that the law specifies "the governor and members of either house of the General Assembly, or committees thereof, shall have free access to his (secretary of state's) office for the inspection and examination of all books, records and proceedings."

Three Stores Burglarized in Portageville

PORTAGEVILLE—Three business firms on East Main street were burglarized between 11:30 p.m. last night and 2 a.m. today.

Taken from Cook's Jewelry store, 221 East Main, were 53 Bulova watches, valued at $2,000.

The store was entered by knocking a hole in the roof with tools believed taken from the earlier break in the night of the L and S Hardware.

A safe at the hardware store was peeled, and $127 in cash taken from it.

Hammers, pipe wrenches, chisels and punches were taken from the store. The tools were found at the back of the jewelry store.

The back door was torn off the hardware store to gain entry.

A hole was knocked in the roof of a variety store, adjacent to the hardware store, and a $10 bill taken from a woman's purse. The door to an unlocked safe was opened. No cash was in the safe.

A patrolling night policeman discovered a rear door of the jewelry store open and the tools on the ground.

The L and S hardware store opened last week.

Male Jurors Would Welcome Assistance Of Women in Trying Cases

This is the second of two stories dealing with the absence of women jurors in two counties.

By NADINE S. TOWNSEND
NEW MADRID — Most male jurors in Pemiscot and New Madrid counties see no reason why women shouldn't serve on juries.

Experienced male jurors were asked if they thought women should serve on juries. All but one answered they thought women should serve. One man was undecided because he thought women might not be as knowledgeable as men in certain types of cases.

None had served with women on a jury.

Comments from men included:

"I couldn't see any reason at all for them not to serve—to their opinion would be as valued as a man. I was not aware they were not called. I guess they are not—they serve in other areas, I guess."

"I would see no harm in it. I couldn't tell you why they don't serve. I don't know how they are picked. I just really don't know."

"I am not sure that they couldn't be picked. I don't know why they are not. When appointments are made I suspect they could, but they just are not selected."

"I think they should (serve). I think it is a very good idea. I

THE SMOLDERING RUINS of the DeKriek Farm Equipment Company, on East Malone after the building and contents were destroyed in an early morning blaze today. In the background is the Travelodge Motel.

Fire Razes Farm Equipment Firm Building

A fire early today destroyed the DeKriek Farm Equipment Company building on East Malone.

Records, parts and supplies, and five pieces of large farm customers equipment were destroyed. Most of the building was engulfed in flames when the alarm was sounded at 12:30 a.m.

The fire's origin was not determined.

All machinery, both old and new, stored on the outside of the building was removed to safety.

A strong wind from the northeast fanned the blaze and hampered firemen. Near zero temperature caused ice to form on their clothing as well as on the ground. The strong winds tossed sparks several blocks, endangering homes on Greer street to the rear of the building.

The firm is a family corporation and owned by Mrs. Jerry DeKriek; her son, Rene, and daughter, Miss Jerry Lynn DeKriek. It is a Minneapolis-Moline farm equipment dealer.

No estimate of damage was available. Temporary headquarters will be at the home of Rene DeKriek, 317 Kramer Drive.

Firm Agrees to Pay Penalty

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Sika Chemical Corp. has agreed to pay a $5,000 penalty but has denied price fixing charges brought by Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth.

The company produces cement additives and epoxy resins and sells to the Highway Commission and other customers. It is a New Jersey corporation with offices in Kansas City and St. Louis.

Danforth asked the supreme court to oust the company from doing business in Missouri. He charged the company had made price fixing agreements with retail dealers or distributors.

But in a stipulation filed with the court Monday, the firm denied any wrongdoing and agreed to pay the $5,000 penalty. Now it is up to the court to decide whether to accept the agreement.

Israeli Emplacements Strafed

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Egyptian warplanes attacked along the Suez Canal today and hit Israeli troops in what was described here as a "hit-and-run attack."

Israel retaliated within an hour, pounding Egyptian military positions at the northern and southern sectors of the canal as well as targets at the top of the Gulf of Suez, the military spokesman said.

There was no announcement of future plans.

Skids Injure Two

Two road accidents injured two drivers, one in skidding into the rear of a car and another on icy pavement.

Susan Lea Brickoff, 23, Perryville, driver of a 1963 Ford, was bruised on a leg, Monday at 9:15 a.m. on highway 61, one half mile north of Perryville.

Her car was struck in the rear by a 1964 Chevrolet station wagon, driven by Wayne Melvin Terbrak, 28, Perryville, as the station wagon stopped to make a left turn, the state patrol said.

The Brickoff woman was taken to Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville.

Mary Tripp, 54, Pilot Knob, driver of a 1960 Co-vair, received a knee and ankle injury Monday at 10:30 a.m. on highway 72, two miles east of Ironton.

School Board Votes to Continue Cosmetology Course

Members of the Sikeston R-6 school board voted yesterday to continue a cosmetology course in the vocational training program.

The course has been under fire by two beauty school owners in Sikeston on charges it interfered with private enterprise.

Before the board made its decision, Supt. of Schools Lynn Twitty told board members of a telephone discussion he held with a Sikeston attorney who appeared before the board on behalf of Lawrence Luber and Mrs. Avis Taylor, private beauty school owners.

Twitty warned newsmen they "would not be back" at another school board meeting "if you mention" what he said about the discussion. Twitty was later asked by a newsmen if school board meetings are public. He conceded they are public, but added "executive sessions could be held."

Executive sessions are held in secret behind closed doors.

Twitty charged the cooperation has not gotten any cooperation in an attempt to iron out the problems between the public school and private schools. Twitty said the attorney informed him the school system "would be enjoined" if the course is not discontinued. Twitty said the attorney offered to meet with him at the attorney's office.

"I said forget it," Twitty said.

Plans call for a committee to be established to check on the operations of the course. Mrs. Taylor has been mentioned as a possible member on the committee. The attorney for Mrs. Taylor was contacted this morning about it.

Warrant Issued For Suspected Airplane Thief

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) — A warrant was issued Monday for a man police say was involved in the theft of a twin engine plane from the Kennett airport but both the plane and the man were not to be found.

Named in the warrant issued by Dunklin County authorities was Michael P. Alexander, about 25, of Blytheville, Ark.

Kennett Police Chief Ed Fuller said Alexander's car was found abandoned on a side road near the airport. Police said he had flown charter flights for McGhee Aviation which had leased it. Tom McGhee said the twin engine car is valued at between $50,000 and $75,000.

He said he discovered the plane missing between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m. Sunday night.

FBI and Federal aviation officials said they had alerted airports throughout the country.

Woman Held in Killing Hopes for Moderate Bond

MEMPHIS — Attorneys for a 40-year-old woman charged with the murder of James R. "Red" Nix Saturday in a midtown Memphis motel was to seek a moderate bond at a hearing today.

Miss Delthia "Dale" Ann Ammon Graves' Attorneys said they would seek a "reasonable bond" because Miss Graves surrendered to police and because Nix was killed in "self-defense."

Nix's body was found shortly before 9 a.m. Saturday in Room 724 of the Holiday Inn-Midtown at 1262 Union. He had been stabbed and shot.

An autopsy to determine the cause of death was not complete, police said.

Miss Graves told a reporter Sunday night that Nix had pinned her to the floor of the motel room by holding his foot on her throat during an argument over money.

One of her attorneys said the argument was mainly about sex, not money. Miss Graves told police Nix had knocked out one of her front teeth and cut her hands and stomach during a scuffle over a knife.

The Shelby County

medical examiner, a private physician, and a dentist examined Miss Graves' wounds at John Gaston Hospital's emergency room but police said Miss Graves was not receiving medical attention at that time. Police said she had slight injuries in several places but that she had not been seriously hurt.

Chief of Detectives Joe Gagliano said Miss Graves' statements prior to surrendering to police were consistent with evidence found at the motel room. He said an all-points bulletin for Miss Graves, a former inmate of Arkansas' Cummins Prison Farm, was issued Saturday night because evidence linked her with the killing. He would not discuss the evidence.

Well-known or gambling activities, Nix had operated gambling places in Tipton County, Tenn., and elsewhere. He served time after being convicted in 1951 of an $11,000 robbery of the Kennel Club, a casino near Byhalia, Miss.

At the time of his death, he was free on $5,000 bond after being convicted in Memphis last year on a federal charge of driving a stolen car across a state line.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Heard at the Coffee Table: "The fact is almost everyone knows the difference between right and wrong but some just hate to make decisions."

WINTER RAIN, GAMBLER'S RAIN

The sleeper stirs awake at midnight, not knowing quite what disturbed him. Then it comes again - a flickering pulse of light through the bedroom curtain. Not the headlights of a car, since the street outside is still. Perhaps it is the flaring of a worn connection on the power pole beside the drive.

Troubled by the small mystery, the sleeper pads to the window, draws back the curtain and waits. Again it comes, silently, a sky-filling sheet of whiteness above the neighbor's house and trees. Then, from a great distance, the low (and somehow comforting) growl of thunder. It is only a storm after all, not Armageddon.

The soft drumming of rain, warm rain, against the window is an uncommon sound for deepest winter. It is full of the memory of gentler seasons. Having crept back to bed, the sleeper can almost believe, in the last instant of his fitful waking, that his mortgaged warren is a mountain cabin in September or a tent on an Ozark gravel bar in early June.

By morning, the streets and sidewalks may be flushed clean of their weeks-long patina of grit and filth. Or, if the temperature should plunge, dawn might break instead on an icy nightmare. What will morning bring? It takes a gambler's spirit to really savor a winter rain.

Ben Franklin said it: "The wolf sheds his coat once a year, his disposition never."

Anna Lewis says: "Lifetime planning goes into the great superhighways. Some lifetime planning, too, goes on the narrow little lanes just wide enough for a car and a couple of kids."

CONTROL COMPUTERS

According to a fellow country editor in this area, there's a murmuring at the grassroots.

The agricultural census forms are now arriving, and a lot of landowners find themselves faced with a major job of paperwork they hadn't expected.

"There are 14 pages!" wailed a lady landowner. "I haven't counted the questions, but there are a lot more than I know the answers to."

Nationwide, there is a great deal of wailing over the various phases of the 1970 census.

Some invasion of privacy is undoubtedly involved. Mostly the answers the Census Bureau demands are just grist for the computer.

The Bureau hopes to get a complete picture of America - its likes and dislikes, its wealth and poverty, its habits and eccentricities, its culture and tastes.

This information will be used by government agencies and business as a means of serving the people better. But it also could be used for more sinister purposes.

Leading the battle to safeguard Americans from abuse by computer is Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights.

Not long ago he made a speech at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania. His subject was "Computers and Individual Privacy."

"Our founding fathers," he said, "with all their vision, could not have foreseen the 'memory banks' and 'printouts' that are beginning to dominate our society."

"Our present legal system affords no protections against the excesses of computers, and no adequate legal remedies for the injuries they may cause."

The Senator pointed out that beyond the immediate legal and practical threats to individuals, "There is a greater danger to our social fabric presented by the network of computer systems which criss-cross our nation."

"These mammoth communications devices, while encouraging actual surveillance in certain circumstances under certain conditions, have also created a climate of apprehension and fear of 'snoopers' - private and official."

What's the Senator's answer to all this?

The nationwide computerization of personnel records, credit records and surveys, which could involve invasion of privacy by government and business, must be controlled by strict rules at all levels, he says.

Now that's something we can all support.

Larry Lindsay says: "The only auto mechanism that works less efficiently with lubrication is the driver."

LEGALIZED POT -- STILL A PIPE DREAM?

James P. Cahill, 19-year-old son of Gov. William T. Cahill of New Jersey, is scheduled to receive a court hearing on charges of possession of marijuana in Philadelphia on Wednesday (Feb. 4).

"You know, some day there could be a reefer hour instead of a cocktail hour," a student forecast nearly three years ago. That hour hasn't come despite increasing acceptance of the use of marijuana. But the legal assault on anti-pot laws is mounting. Penalties for its possession and use are likely to be reduced by this session of Congress.

Even the Nixon administration - the symbol of "squareness" to the stoned generation - is supporting legislation to moderate existing laws. Attorney General John N. Mitchell has noted that present federal laws making possession of marijuana a felony provide penalties that can exceed those for manslaughter or sabotage.

State laws -- under which most marijuana convictions are made -- are particularly harsh. Attention was focused upon them recently by the sentencing of a 21-year-old to a 50-year prison term in Texas for selling two marijuana cigarettes, and the imposition of a 20-year term to a Virginia youth found with 6.5 pounds of the stuff in his possession.

For years such severity attracted virtually no public attention, possibly because the use of marijuana was limited primarily to the ghetto and marginal society. But the last five years have seen an explosive growth in the use of pot. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D Mass.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics, has estimated that about 12 million Americans have used marijuana at least once. From 30 to 40 per cent of today's college students and 20 per cent of the high school seniors have tried it.

Pot smoking by the children of the middle class has its political effects in Washington, where some official families are tormented by the discovery of drug use among their children. It has led to demands for stiff penalties for the drug "pusher" -- but more flexible treatment of mere users.

Legalization of marijuana has been proposed by some, including Dr. Margaret Mead, the anthropologist. She recently told a Senate committee that "We are damaging our country, our laws and the relations between young and old by its prohibition. This is far more dangerous than any overuse."

The bill just passed by the Senate -- the Controlled Dangerous Substances Act of 1969 -- does not legalize pot. It would make simple possession of marijuana and other "dangerous" drugs a misdemeanor, subject to a jail term of one year or less but giving a judge authority to suspend the sentence for a first offender. The aim of the bill is to concentrate on professional drug peddlers. They could be jailed for up to 12 years and fined $25,000 or both.

The federal government also has drafted a model narcotics law for the states which it hopes the various legislatures will enact. Already, the Illinois jail sentence for persons caught with a small amount of pot has been changed to a one year maximum, compared to the earlier two-year minimum. Nebraska subjects first offenders to a seven-day blitz course on the danger of drugs.

Perhaps the major block to legalization of marijuana in the near future is the lack of agreement on its effects. Scientists and laymen differ as to whether it is harmful and leads to the use of "hard" drugs. Such a study is being made by the National Institute of Mental Health. It has promised answers within two years. Until then, at least, legalized pot will remain a pipe dream.

Ben Franklin said it: "Tis easier to suppress the first desire, than to satisfy all that follow it."

Call of the Wild. In Nashville, members of Vanderbilt University's Kappa Alpha Order (Southern) eagerly chased what they thought was their deodorized pet skunk, name of General Sherman, learned too late it was another skunk.

If you want to enjoy a pleasing sensation, tell a man you have heard something about him. He will think it is something mean, of course. Then tell him something pleasant. He will glow like a school boy, and both of you will feel better all day. Don't tell people the mean things you hear about them. That is inexcusable.

"A tax cut is the kindest cut of all," stated Mr. Robert C. Tyson, Finance Committee Chairman of U. S. Steel. He then continued: "I believe that... the most important long-range tax reform for the general well-being of both the public and private sectors (of the economy) is tax reduction... no one is ever normally impelled to earn or produce anything by the knowledge that the fruits of his labor will be taxed away from him." Mr. Tyson further stated, "a man may... produce in spite of, but never because of, taxes."

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) -- Every period of human life is like a Christmas tree -- it has its good side and its bad side.

This month, while the rest of America will be celebrating the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington, I'll be figuratively lighting a birthday cake of my own, one lit by a bonfire of 59 candles.

"How many did you say, Harold?" Why, you don't look a year over 59. And if you took off 30 or 35 pounds, you probably wouldn't look over 57.

Well, thanks everybody, thanks. There's nothing like a kind word to lift the human spirit.

Naturally, I suppose you all want to know how I feel about being 59. Well, I feel pretty much like the fellow in a story Abraham Lincoln used to like to tell.

This man had been tarred and feathered and ridden out of town by a group of citizens he had unintentionally offended. As he was plucking the tar and feathers off himself, one lone sympathizer asked him how he felt.

"Well," said the victim ruefully, "if it weren't for the prestige, I'd just as soon have skipped the whole experience."

Becoming 59 isn't so bad in itself. What makes it memorable is that it means you are entering your 60th year of life, and that does kind of pull a fellow up short.

There are certain birthdays that make a person want to lie down and cry. With a maiden lady it is her 30th; with a man it's his 40th. With a married woman it's the year in which her last child leaves home.

The beginning of one's 60th year is also a kind of personal landmark for anybody. To reverse a common figure of speech, it is a time when he can begin to see the darkness at the end of the tunnel.

It is a time when he first really realizes -- and it comes with the blow of an inner thunderclap -- that he will never do again as many things as he has done before. He doesn't have that many years left.

It is a time for stocktaking and inventory. Does he need an operation or some dental work done? Better do them now, while his company's health program will help pay the medical bills.

It is time for him to read the fine print in his life and accident insurance policies and see if there are any changes to be made.

It is time for him to study his pension program. If it looks inadequate, he'll have to quit hanging around pool halls and start saving more money.

It is time for him to consider giving up his worst bad habits, that is, if he can do so without money, of course, was bestowed upon the bank by the American taxpayers.

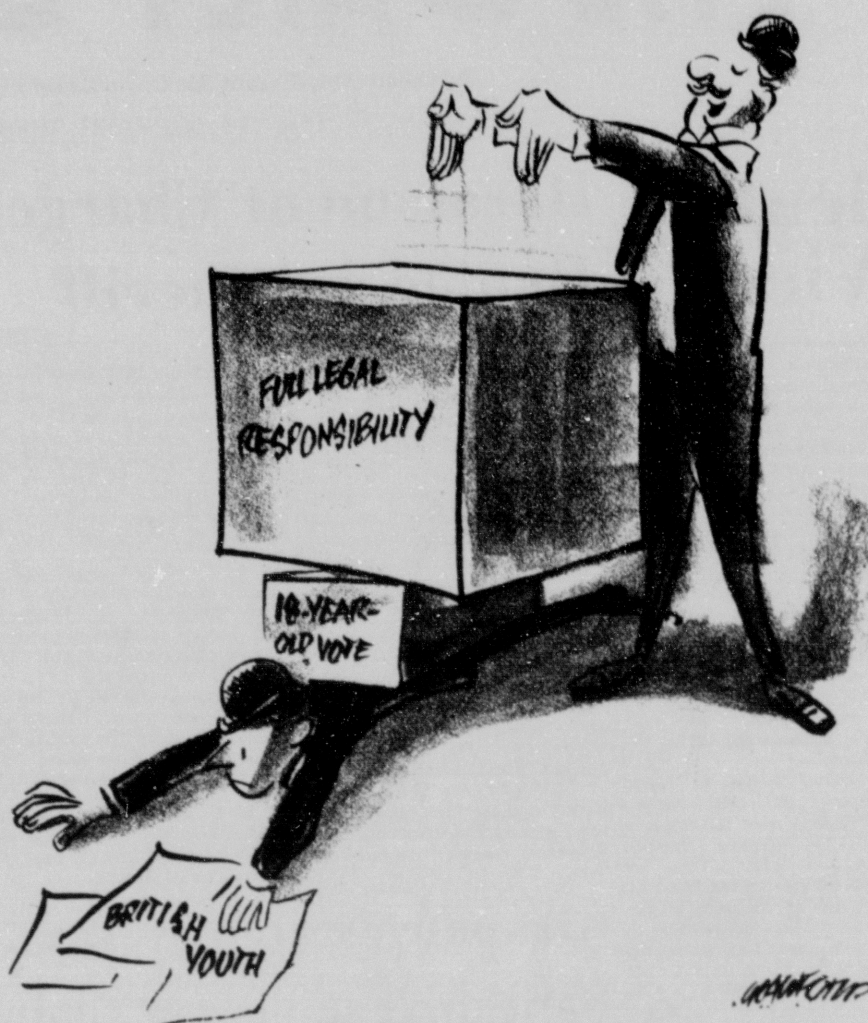

During Herrera's 10-year reign as the bank's first president, its funds have been put to use never intended by the governments, which put up the money, to stimulate economic development in Latin America. For example, Herrera used bank money to mortgage his swanky home in an exclusive Washington neighborhood.

The bank's funds have also been used to publish three slick editions of Herrera's long-winded speeches. And his deeds are prominently displayed in an impressive ream of costly bank newsletters, periodicals, and other publications. Indeed, the bank shelled out $269,000 last year on printing alone.

Although he holds no graduate degrees in economics and his theories are taken seriously few places outside the bank, Herrera travels far and wide to pontificate about them. In one case, the bank shelled out $7,000 to finance a frivolous toast with me on my 59th birthday? Thank you. By the way, make mine Geritol.

Interstate Highway 70, from Kansas City to St. Louis, was the scene of the most services performed on any one Missouri super highway. The Highway Patrol rendered 14,158 services on I-70. The next highest was Interstate Highway 44, from St. Louis to just west of Joplin, with 6,324 services.

A total of 5,279 traffic accidents were investigated by the Highway Patrol on the interstate highways in 1969. The traffic fatality toll on the State's super-highways last year was 133.

Captain F.W. Shadwell, head of the Patrol's Traffic Division, noted that over 3,000 more services were rendered to motorists on the interstate highways last year as compared to 1968. He also pointed out that over a thousand more accidents were investigated on the super-highways by the state law enforcement agency. The number of persons killed, however, was less than in 1968 when 150 persons died on Missouri's interstate highways.

When the children spent Saturday night with Grandma, their Mom and Pop enjoyed a quiet Sunday breakfast. "Golly, I miss them," the mother remarked.

"Yeah, me too," Pop replied. "Knock my fruit juice over, will you, and rub jam in my hair!"

DRESS TIPS: Softly colored (pastel) shirts will set off your summer tan better than the bolder colors... We know a smart businessman who keeps three extra ties in his desk--a blue, gray and brown. Then, if the gray or soup splashes at lunch, the extra ties come out of the jacket if it is brushed well with lightly dampened brush before hanging up... Splashes on your clothes from passing cars on rainy days are usually mud spots. If allowed to dry, they can generally be brushed off. If not, rub with cool water.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- Operating three-day seminar in Mexico behind the gleaming glass walls City where Herrera held forth at of his lavish Washington headquarters, President Felipe Herrera of the Inter-American Development Bank has become one of the most powerful men in the Western Hemisphere.

As the ruler of an institution that loans at least $600 million a year to Latin American countries to aid their development, he has enormous influence with the business and political leaders of the borrower nations.

But behind the prestigious facade of this international banking institution, this column has uncovered a tangle of haphazard lending practices, outright waste and attempts by the suave Herrera to use the bank to polish his personal image. Most of the personal money, of course, was bestowed upon the bank by the American taxpayers.

During Herrera's 10-year reign as the bank's first president, its funds have been put to use never intended by the governments, which put up the money, to stimulate economic development in Latin America. For example, Herrera used bank money to mortgage his swanky home in an exclusive Washington neighborhood.

The bank's funds have also been used to publish three slick editions of Herrera's long-winded speeches. And his deeds are prominently displayed in an impressive ream of costly bank newsletters, periodicals, and other publications. Indeed, the bank shelled out $269,000 last year on printing alone.

Although he holds no graduate degrees in economics and his theories are taken seriously few places outside the bank, Herrera travels far and wide to pontificate about them. In one case, the bank shelled out $7,000 to finance a frivolous

The children's playground slide may pave the way for a new adult craze for the young at heart.

With as many as 14 stainless steel channels side by side, the most recently built slides are 30 feet high, 30 feet wide and 150 feet long. Sliders sitting on burlap mats can reach speeds of 30 miles an hour during the 10-second ride. Waxed stainless steel with a matte finish forms the skin of the slide. A corrugated understructure can be used as a heating channel to extend operations of the slides beyond the summer season.

CHILDREN SUPPORT SERVICEMEN

The children who attend Robinwood Elementary School in Huntington Beach, California, are eagerly participating in various projects to support United States servicemen in Vietnam. These projects began in the spring of 1969 when the school children "adopted" a Marine Corps fighter squadron in Vietnam.

The students have participated in a variety of activities to boost the morale of the men in Vietnam. More than 400 pupils in the school have written letters and cards to members of the fighter squadron.

Around Christmas time, the children baked, packaged and mailed dozens of cookies to the servicemen. They also prepared miniature Christmas trees made of wash cloths, pencils and ballpoint pens, soap bars and various other small items which the Red Cross had recommended as needed by servicemen.

The children were assisted in their Christmas projects by their parents and by leaders of organizations such as Cub Scouts and Campfire Girls. Most of the actual work, however, was done by the children themselves.

The expenses of these various projects are met by the participants. The children are very willing to contribute their own money to help pay for such things as postage.

To show their gratitude the children's adopted servicemen sent the school a flag which had flown in the Vietnam war zone. The flag was presented in a special ceremony by Marine officers. Approximately 1,500 persons attended the ceremony. The flag now flies over the school building.

These children and the adults who help them are to be commended. They have set a fine example for the rest of us.

JUDGMENT AT THE BAR: Ted Kennedy, Walter Reuther Asked to Meet Standards They Ask of Judge Carswell

Washington, D.C.: -- Certainly there must be times when politicians, those artisans of compromise, rise to moments of compassion. But these moments are scarce -- as witness the inquisition of Judge G. Harrold Carswell.

The inquisitions, such as Senators Edward Kennedy and Joseph Tydings, with a sharp assist from Walter Reuther, might well have turned to the Belgian metaphysical symbolist, Maurice Maeterlinck, who somewhere wrote that "I have never for one instant seen clearly within myself; how then would you have me judge the deeds of others?"

Could Ted Kennedy, or Walter Reuther or Joe Tydings stand the test they put to Judge Carswell -- that of standing by what they said and did when they were in their 20's? Certainly this will anger my friend Ted Kennedy -- but would he want his political ambitions measured by early circumstance?

If one is talking of segregation, as he did during the early hours of the Senate confirmation hearing, is it unfair to ask Sen. Kennedy, in turn, why the Kennedy family chose to live in Bronxville, N.Y.? At the time they did it would have taken Gen. Patton's Third Army to get a Negro into that handsome community just north of New York City unless the black was a maid. Nor do the records reveal many -- if any -- families of Jewish or Italian extraction at the time living near the attractive estate on Pondville Road.

Until comparatively recently this community has been a headache and heartache to those who fight for the principles Ted Kennedy now uses to lacerate Judge Carswell. The Floridian is demeaned, as is his sponsor and patron, President Nixon, when the judge is asked to prove that he now finds white supremacy "obnoxious and abhorrent."

No one would ask this of the United Auto Workers Union President Reuther who has a Florida home near Fort Myers.

And when it comes to the golf courses used by many of the Senators' political allies and intimates, it would take considerable listings of clubs which are even-tenured with the Capital City links being used to stiletto Harrold Carswell.

There also are sundry rural and coastal cottage compounds, estates, yacht clubs, and metropolitan apartment houses in fashionable districts, long luxuriously occupied by the anti-Carswell contingent which hardly are noted for their black or ethnic minority residents. So if this be the yardstick of one man, let it be the measure of all.

As for Judge Carswell's early literary endeavors, they'd hardly qualify for an H.L. Mencken award. But they were written -- and spoken -- when he was in his

Ann Landers Aphrodisiac Formula May Substitute French Horns?

Dear Ann Landers: Everyone in this office was interested in the letter from the man who returned from Vietnam with an aphrodisiac—powdered reindeer horns. We are well aware that phony sex potions have been around for centuries, but somehow this stuff, as described by the soldier, sounds like the real McCoy.

We live in Michigan. There are no reindeer up here. Would just plain deer horns be O.K.? Please advise. —F.L. and J.

Dear F. L. and J.: I am certain that plain deer horns would be just as effective as reindeer horns. If you can't locate deer horns, you might try goat horns, or fog horns, French horns or shoe horns. The results, I assure you, will be the same. Zero.

Dear Ann Landers: I couldn't believe my eyes when I read your advice to "Pestered Louise." You said it is bad manners to drop in on people unexpectedly and that no one should be a sitting duck for anybody who knows how to ring the doorbell.

What is wrong with you that you don't like company? From your column one gets the impression you love people, but such statements as this make me wonder.

I'm tickled pink when someone drops in. I can think of no greater compliment. I'm not a fussy budget about my house. If it isn't neat as a pin, I don't care. I serve whatever is on hand and if I don't have anything to serve I say so.

Please change your advice. It doesn't sound like you. But then you hear from so many nutty people, maybe you are getting a little nutty yourself. —Kentucky Ella.

Dear Ella: Yes, I do hear from some nutty people, but every now and then I get a lovely letter from a charming person like you so it evens out. I did say it is inconsiderate to drop in unexpectedly and I meant it. People who are uninvited and unexpected are usually unwelcome. At least, that's the way I see it.

Dear Ann Landers: What can be done about a 45-year-old

More Than 175 Parents Attend PTA Meeting At Southeast

More than 175 parents and teachers were in attendance Monday night as Southeast PTA held its January meeting. The program was opened by Girl Scout troop 79 presenting the flag ceremony. Troop leaders are Mrs. Beverly Hawkins and Miss Susan Coats.

Miss Coats' fifth grade presented a play entitled "The Baker's Apprentice." Members of the cast were Mark Webb, Harold Myrick, Glenn Howell, Kenny Hodgkiss, Alvin Wooley, Sharon Duncan, Beverly Harrington, Ollie Starnes, and she realizes.

I don't believe a woman in her 40's should be wearing mini skirts and kicking up her heels with her daughter's boyfriends. Mom insists she is chaperoning. I don't think teen-agers need much chaperoning. Do you? —Scarsdale.

Dear Scars: Parents should be under the roof when their teen-agers entertain, but they should not plant themselves in the middle of the action and act like part of the crowd.

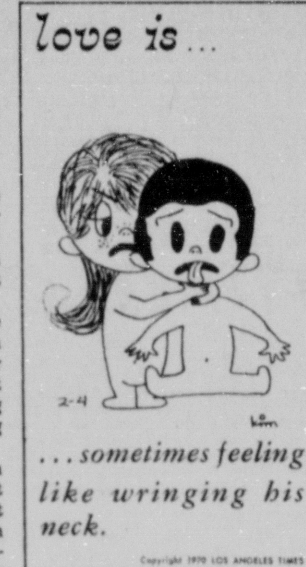

A mother who is attractive and a good hostess should turn down the volume around her daughter's friends. Without realizing it, she is competing with her daughter and creating trouble.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage—What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Individual
Can Delay
Heart Ails

This is the second of a series of three articles presented by the Missouri Heart Association to inform readers of this newspaper about progress in the field of heart and circulatory diseases.

Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston, a founder and former president of the American Heart Association, is a leading proponent of the idea that the individual -- working conscientiously with his physician -- can do much to avoid or delay heart attack and stroke, which together are responsible for more than 770,000 deaths yearly in this country.

Dr. White's view-- shared by almost all physicians and medical scientists -- is that the risk of heart attack and stroke can be substantially reduced if the individual does certain things and avoids doing certain others. Here are his recommendations:

1. Set up a regimen of regular exercise in accord with your physical condition.
2. Reduce wherever possible consumption of high-cholesterol foods and saturated fats, getting a larger proportion of your fat intake from polyunsaturated (vegetable) fats.
3. Don't gain a pound after the age of 22.
4. Don't smoke cigarettes. And if you are now smoking, stop it immediately.
5. Make a practice of getting a physical examination at least once a year, with prompt medical treatment of any high blood pressure that may be found.

It is difficult to estimate the number of lives that would be saved if everybody followed these recommendations, but consideration of just one of them -- cigarette smoking -- strongly suggests that the number would be most significant. If, for example, smokers enjoyed the same relatively favorable mortality experience as those who never smoked, there would be about 70,000 fewer heart attack deaths in this country each year.

Certain so-called risk factors-- notably sex (men are more prone to heart attack than women), age and heredity -- are beyond control.

But there are risk factors you can control. They include physical inactivity, excessive cholesterol in the blood, obesity, cigarette smoking and high blood pressure.

It should be noted that the precise mechanisms by which these risk factors work are imperfectly understood. Nevertheless, many studies suggest that minimizing these factors can play an important role in enabling people to avoid or delay heart attack.

Take cholesterol, for example. There is excellent documentation showing that men aged 30-60 with a high blood cholesterol measurement suffer heart attacks three times more often than those with a low measurement.

It has also been demonstrated that many individuals can lower their blood cholesterol by avoiding high cholesterol foods, and getting a larger percentage of their fat requirements from unsaturated (vegetable) fats and a smaller proportion from saturated (animal) fats.

These facts indicate why it may be extremely wise to get oneself inside the low cholesterol bracket. Although more research is needed to define the role of cholesterol in coronary heart disease, many physicians feel that the evidence is sufficiently convincing to recommend a dietary regimen for their susceptible patients and to adopt one for themselves.

Especially is this so when the individual has one or more of the other risk factors such as hypertension, obesity and cigarette smoking since the hazard increases with the number of risk factors present.

Next: The importance of controlling hypertension.

Dear Editor:

TOO MANY VIETNAMS
The same repeat performance all over again and again. The reason and causes of war we surmise, are hard to separate. The good from the evil. They are twins by nature and are bonded together by the rules of society.

The name of the game is money. Some may call it economics, it puts on various forms of disguise. Like nature, we have storms and tornadoes, then a calm, the sun comes out and the weather is wonderful.

We often say to ourselves, "We can't be peaceful of mind (the rules of the game aren't played that way). We pick up a newspaper, watch TV and see young people demonstrating and marching, some peaceful, some with destructive intent who would like to destroy our form of government."

I don't think they approve of that old axiom, The King and associates can do no wrong. Even the King is pressured into acts he does not quite approve, but he has commitments to fulfill. That is what you call the "profit gap."

Maybe war is just, but it creates so many side effects. Greed, power, death, and glory, which creates large profits for so few.

When Nixon was campaigning for office he stated, "The public is entitled to a peice of the action." There are two ways to look at his speech, did he mean "figuratively or literally." Those two words have caused more comment than any other word in our English language.

Politics and religion (I won't go into the latter) history speaks for itself.

You hear so much about the credibility gap. I don't think that is our problem but just a

New Madrid County
Budget at $478,992

NEW MADRID -- The County Court will hold a public hearing on the proposed budget for New Madrid County at the court room Thursday, at 10:00 a.m., at which time objections or suggestions may be made to the proposed budget filed Jan. 26 by Jesse H. Wilkins, County Clerk and Budget Officer.

And unless some objections are raised at such hearing, chances are the budget will be approved and some $478,992.35 will be appropriated for salaries, office operation expense, institutional care and various other required expenses. The figure quoted is the maximum that may be spent during the calendar year, however it may be added that Wilkins is a little on the conservative side in that the figure for the prior year was $413,565.49, whereas only $353,761.46 of the amount was actually disbursed.

The expenditures, according to Wilkins, and his budget message, are in line with the usual expenditures with the exception as to added items including an election expense (none being held in 1969), an item for an emergency disaster motor vehicle for Civil Defense T-hangers for the airport, contribution to the Soil Conservation Service, plus a small raise to clerical employees and the Sheriff's deputies as a partial off-set in cost of living increase. And inflation would tend to cause office supplies to be increased somewhat.

To meet these anticipated expenditures Wilkins indicates some $300,000.00 may be expected from current taxes, $50,000.00 returned as fees collected by officials, $10,000.00 refunded by state for surplus commodity expense, $3000.00 foster care refunds, $12,000.00 from Health Center for Social Security and withholding taxes, $187,413.03 cash on hand and estimated back tax collections, less delinquent current taxes in the sum of $16,296.61, leaving net receipts of $546,116.42 from which the appropriations could be made.

Wilkins' report would indicate a $67,124.07 surplus at the end of the year if the receipts are forthcoming and the entire amount of appropriations were spent.

In addition to the county budget, the road and bridge budget will indicate some $418,515.58 being available, which includes $148,750.00 from current taxes, $2000.00 from intangible taxes, $118,287.90 in CART road and bridge refunds, $1150.00 in miscellaneous items, less $9784.13 for delinquent current taxes, plus $158,111.81 cash and estimated back taxes available.

The anticipated expenditures for road and bridge purposes will be based on a maximum amount of $248,900.00, which should leave a surplus on December 31 in the sum of $169,515.58. And again we might add that for 1969 some $272,167.10 was appropriated, while only $218,840.22 was actually spent.

In addition to the two preceding budgets, several other budgets will be open for inspection, including Johnson Grass Control, and Drainage Districts Nos. 14, 18, 35, 36 and 37; their receipts and expenditures being almost identical for the prior year, with the exception of Johnson Grass Control, which had sufficient funds on hand for 1969 expenses and no tax levy was made, while for the current year a levy of 3 cents is in the works.

POPULAR BLUFF -- In discussing details of the state school monies fund, State Senator Nelson B. Tinnin of Portageville said:

"The public schools will receive the full amount of $234 million in the fiscal year of 1969-70. This could have been accomplished in two ways; a fourth distribution instead of the usual three or an emergency appropriation of approximately $7,500,000."

The governor in his recommendations to the legislature, chose to make a fourth distribution before the end of the fiscal year. Since the governor has assured us he will authorize the fourth distribution the senate merely concurred with the governor who has an opinion from a past attorney general that this was legal and that funds will be available."

If You Were the Judge
Crazy Woman Wrecks
Car and Is Liable

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Nancy was an inmate at a funny farm and found it a bit of a bore. Consequently, she strolled nonchalantly out of its portals one day and climbed behind the wheel of a car that she found with its motor running. As it turned out, poor Nancy's driving capacities proved worse than her mental capacities. After scaring more than a dozen motorists off the road, she crashed broadside into Herman's new convertible and converted it into a wreck. Furious, Herman sued Nancy for the damage to his car.

"The girl was driving as though she were on the way to an accident," he told the judge. "She drove like a crackpot."

"That's exactly our defense," retorted Nancy's lawyer. "She was a crackpot. She was a fugitive from a mental institution and, therefore, Herman can't collect. For, obviously a person who isn't responsible can't be held responsible."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make crackpot Nancy pay?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that as a general principle, an insane person may be held responsible for his civil wrongs the same as a sane person, except, perhaps, in those cases where malice and therefore intention are necessary ingredients. In this case, concluded the judge, the general principle was applicable since the negligent operation of an automobile requires no specific intent or malice.

Teachers Give Students Income Tax Hike Views

Teachers in Sikeston public schools have been giving students during classes their recommendations on a state income tax increase. The increase was voted by the state legislature last year but delayed in application.

The proposal provides for increased state aid to schools, and teacher organizations have given it vigorous support. Teacher salaries would be affected.

The tax increase did not become effective because State Sen. Ear Blackwell, Hillsboro Democrat, initiated a successful referendum petition drive calling for a statewide vote on the proposal. April 7 has been set as the election date.

Both Supt. of Schools Lynn Twitty and his administrative assistant, Harold Vogel, said they condone teacher instruction on the increase if the matter did not take up the majority of classroom time and depending on circumstances regarding how the subject was brought up.

Twitty said probably some individual teachers have "told students of the necessity of the increase if we maintain certain programs."

Blackwell's move to get the measure on the ballot could postpone tax collections for an indefinite period, possibly to defeat the tax increase cuts in both academic and extracurricular activities. He added teachers have not been specifically instructed to give their opinions to students about the income tax increase proposal.

On the question of petition validity, Twitty said, "I think we are spinning our wheels."

In Tuesday's board meeting, Vogel brought up the question of whether it is fair that persons, teachers, have the right to do what obtained petition signatures this if they just put out "can deviate from the law" and

School Board Votes to Continue Cosmetology Course

Members of the Sikeston R-6 school board voted yesterday to continue a cosmetology course in the vocational training program.

The course has been under fire by two beauty school owners in Sikeston on charges it interfered with private enterprise.

Before the board made its decision, Supt. of Schools Lynn Twitty told board members of a telephone discussion he held with a Sikeston attorney who appeared before the board on behalf of Lawrence Luber and Mrs. Avis Taylor, private beauty school owners.

Twitty warned newsmen they "would not be back" at another school board meeting "if you mention" what he said about the discussion. Twitty was later asked by a newsmen if school board meetings are public. He conceded they are public, but added "executive sessions could be held."

Executive sessions are held in secret behind closed doors. Twitty charged the school has not gotten any cooperation in an attempt to iron out the problems between the public school and private schools. Twitty said the attorney informed him the school system "would be enjoined" if the course is not discontinued. Twitty said the attorney offered to meet with him at the attorney's office.

"I said forget it," Twitty said.

Plans call for a committee to be established to check on the operations of the course. Mrs. Taylor has been mentioned as a possible member on the committee. The attorney for Mrs. Taylor was contacted this morning about it.

Warrant Issued For Suspected Airplane Thief

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) - A warrant was issued Monday for a man police say was involved in the theft of a twin engine plane from the Kennett airport but both the plane and the man were not to be found.

Named in the warrant issued by Dunklin County authorities was Michael P. Alexander, about 25, of Blytheville, Ark.

Kennett Police Chief Ed Fuller said Alexander's car was found abandoned on a side road near the airport. Police said he had flown charter flights for McGhee Aviation which had leased it. Tom McGhee said the twin engine craft is valued at between $50,000 and $75,000. He said he discovered the plane missing between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m. Sunday night.

FBI and Federal aviation officials said they had alerted airports throughout the country.

Harassment Charge Denied by Sheriff

EAST PRAIRIE, Mo. (AP) - The sheriff of Mississippi County denies he is harassing signers of petitions calling for a referendum on the state income tax.

Sheriff Pedro Simmons discounted the charge Monday night by state Rep. Richard M. Marshall, R-Webster Groves. Marshall said the sheriff was going around with a notary to get signers of the petition to sign an affidavit saying they wanted their names removed from the petition.

"It's a conspiracy to deprive these people of their rights to sign a petition," said Marshall, a supporter of the drive to have the tax submitted to voters.

"I'll take care of the sheriff's office and let him take care of his office," Simmons said. "Nobody's being harassed down here. I'm an officer of the

Kirkpatrick Denies Tax

Petition Tampering Claim

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - James C. Kirkpatrick, secretary of state, said today no one had an opportunity at any time to tamper with petitions calling for a referendum election on the embattled state income tax increase.

In a two-page statement, Kirkpatrick said "the petitions have been closely supervised and safeguarded by members of our staff at all times since they have been in our possession. There has been no opportunity at any time for anyone to tamper with the petitions."

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, DHillsboro, the man who headed the petition drive, charged Monday 642 petition forms were missing, including No. 1 on which his signature appeared.

"It's incredible," he said, "that the governor and his lackeys would go this far to keep the people from voting."

Blackwell accused Rep. E. J. Cantrell, House Appropriations chairman, of being the governor's "lackey who was low enough" to take some of the

Woman Held in Killing Hopes for Moderate Bond

MEMPHIS - Attorneys for a 40-year-old woman charged with the murder of James R. 'Red' Nix Saturday in a midtown Memphis motel was to seek a moderate bond at a hearing today.

Miss Deltha 'Dale' Ann Ammon Graves' attorneys said they would seek a "reasonable bond" because Miss Graves surrendered to police and because Nix was killed in "self-defense."

Nix's body was found shortly before 9 a.m. Saturday in Room 724 of the Holiday Inn Midtown at 1262 Union. He had been stabbed and shot.

An autopsy to determine the cause of death was not complete, police said.

Miss Graves told a reporter Sunday night that Nix had pinned her to the floor of the motel room by holding his foot on her throat during an argument over money.

One of her attorneys said the argument was mainly about sex, not money. Miss Graves told police Nix had knocked out one of her front teeth and cut her hands and stomach during a scuffle over a knife.

court." Simmons said some persons were checking petition signatures and it was found that some of the circulators did not actually witness persons signing the petitions. "Also there were some duplicate names and cases where wives signed for husbands," the sheriff said.

Mrs. Goldie Benson said the sheriff told her she might get into "fierce trouble," because of her having circulated petitions. She quoted him as saying: "We'll get you for perjury."

Simmons denied it. He said he did warn Mrs. Benson that someone might file suit and she might be asked in court: "Did you certify these petitions."

Mrs. Benson describes the exchange with the sheriff in a letter to the editor on page 8 in today's newspaper.

THE SMOLDERING RUINS of the DeKriek Farm Equipment Company, on East Malone after the building and contents were destroyed in an early morning blaze today. In the background is the Travelodge Motel.

Fire Razes Farm Equipment Firm Building

A fire early today destroyed the DeKriek Farm Equipment Company building on East Malone.

Records, parts and supplies, and five pieces of large farm customers equipment were destroyed. Most of the building was engulfed in flames when the alarm was sounded at 12:30 a.m. The fire origin was not determined.

All machinery, both old and new, stored on the outside of the building was removed to safety.

A strong wind from the northeast fanned the blaze and hampered firemen. Near zero temperature caused ice to form on their clothing as well as on the ground. The strong winds tossed sparks several blocks, endangering homes on Greer street to the rear of the building.

The firm is a family corporation and owned by Mrs. Jerry DeKriek; her son, Rene, and daughter, Miss Jerry Lynn DeKriek. It is a Minneapolis-Moline farm equipment dealer.

No estimate of damage was available. Temporary headquarters will be at the home of Rene DeKriek, 317 Kramer Drive.

The company produces cement additives and epoxy resins and sells to the Highway Commission and other customers. It is a New Jersey corporation with offices in Kansas City and St. Louis.

Danforth asked the supreme court to oust the company from doing business in Missouri. He charged the company had made price fixing agreements with retail dealers or distributors.

But in a stipulation filed with the court Monday, the firm denied any wrongdoing and agreed to pay the $5,000 penalty. Now it is up to the court to decide whether to accept the agreement.

Israeli Emplacements Strafed

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Egyptian warplanes attacked along the Suez Canal today and hit Israeli troops in what was described here as a "hit-and-run attack."

The military command said two Egyptian jets made the foray, causing no casualties but slight damage to one Israeli emplacement north of Eltara, near the Mediterranean end of the 103-mile-long waterway.

Israel retaliated within an hour, pounding Egyptian military positions at the northern and southern sectors of the canal as well as targets at the top of the Gulf of Suez, the military spokesman said.

Male Jurors Would Welcome Assistance Of Women in Trying Cases

This is the second of two stories dealing with the absence of women jurors in two counties.

BY NADINE S. TOWNSEND
NEW MADRID - Most male jurors in Pemiscot and New Madrid counties see no reason why women shouldn't serve on juries.

Experienced male jurors were asked if they thought women should serve on juries. All but one answered they thought women should serve. One man was undecided because he thought women might not be as knowledgeable as men in certain types of cases.

None had served with women on a jury.

Comments from men included: "I couldn't see any reason at all for them not to serve-to me their opinion would be as valued as a man. I was not aware they were not called. I guess they are not-they serve in other areas, I guess."

"I would see no harm in it. I couldn't tell you why they don't serve. I don't know how they are picked. I just really don't know."

"I am not sure that they couldn't be picked. I don't know why they are not. When appointments are made I suspect they could, but they just are not selected."

"I think they should (serve). I think it is a very good idea. I think there should be more of them in this particular area. They serve in other places. I just tried one in December in Butler county with three women on the jury. We see them all the time. I have had a number of cases in Charleston, a number in Scott and Stoddard counties with women on the jury. I couldn't tell any difference in a jury with women on them or without. I have no reason whatever against it. I think definitely in my opinion it is part of their responsibility."

Another attorney said: "I see no reason for them not to. I have tried cases with women on juries. I had no problems. They may have more problems in being free to serve."

Answers given by attorneys to why women in New Madrid county were not impaneled for jury service were:

"On a whole, I wouldn't know. I would be kinda undecided. There may be some types of cases tried where a woman would not be familiar or I have the knowledge a man would. Women just wouldn't have the knowledge on certain things. I'm thinking about an automobile accident, how a car would react; women don't know that much about a car. Some types of cases I think they would probably be better than men. It all depends on what the case might be."

New Madrid attorneys were unanimous that women should serve on juries.

really don't know."

Two attorneys who believed women would ask to be released from duty said:

"Most of them don't want to perform the particular duty or service. They can get off and most of them that have been impaneled have begged off."

"Under Missouri law a woman cannot be made to serve. They are not impaneled because in so many instances they ask to be excused and the judge has to excuse them. If 10 women were impaneled and they all asked to be excused you wouldn't have a jury, and the judge would have to stop everything while the sheriff went out and picked a jury off the street."

When asked how can women in New Madrid and Pemiscot counties be afforded an opportunity for jury service, Judge Ragland answered:

"I presume if they start calling the clerk of the court they will put their names in. After enough names are on the list, some names would be drawn."

Today's women seem to be stereotyped with women, who in the past, were not willing to perform the civic responsibility of jury duty.

In today's society, where women are equally participating with men, all-male juries in New Madrid and Pemiscot counties can and may change to include women jurors in the administration of justice.

One attorney answered: "I assume everybody involved had concluded they didn't want to bother women; I

Skids Injure Two

Two road accidents injured two drivers, one in skidding into the rear of a car and another on icy pavement.

Susan Lea Brickoff, 23, Perryville, driver of a 1963 Ford, was bruised on a leg Monday at 9:15 a.m. on highway 61, one half mile north of Perryville.

Her car was struck in the rear by a 1964 Chevrolet station wagon, driven by Wayne Melvin Tertrak, 28, Perryville, as the station wagon stopped to make a left turn, the state patrol said.

The Brickoff woman was taken to Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville.

Mary Tripp, 54, Pilot Knob, driver of a 1960 Corvair, received a knee and ankle injury Monday at 10:30 a.m. on highway 72, two miles east of Ironton.

She skidded on icy pavement, went off the road, struck a road sign and a tree.

She was treated by an Ironton physician and released.

WINTER RAIN, GAMBLER'S RAIN

The sleeper stirs awake at midnight, not knowing quite what disturbed him. Then it comes again - a flickering pulse of light through the bedroom curtain. Not the headlights of a car, since the street outside is still. Perhaps it was the flaring of a worn connection on the power pole beside the drive.

Troubled by the small mystery, the sleeper pads to the window, draws back the curtain and waits. Again it comes, silently, a sky-filling sheet of whiteness above the neighbor's house and trees. Then, from a great distance, the low (and somehow comforting) growl of thunder. It is only a storm after all, not Armageddon.

The soft drumming of rain, warm rain, against the window is an uncommon sound for deepest winter. It is full of the memory of gentler seasons. Having crept back to bed, the sleeper can almost believe, in the last instant of his fitful waking, that his mortgaged warren is a mountain cabin in September or a tent on an Ozark gravel bar in early June.

By morning, the streets and sidewalks may be flushed clean of their weeks-long patina of grit and filth. Or, if the temperature should plunge, dawn might break instead on an icy nightmare. What will morning bring? It takes a gambler's spirit to really savor a winter rain.

CONTROL COMPUTERS

According to a fellow country editor in this area, there's a murmuring at the grassroots.

The agricultural census forms are now arriving, and a lot of landowners find themselves faced with a major job of paperwork they hadn't expected.

"There are 14 pages!" wailed a lady landowner. "I haven't counted the questions, but there are a lot more than I know the answers to."

Nationwide, there is a great deal of wailing over the various phases of the 1970 census.

Some invasion of privacy is undoubtedly involved. Mostly the answers the Census Bureau demands are just grist for the computer.

The Bureau hopes to get a complete picture of America - its likes and dislikes, its wealth and poverty, its habits and eccentricities, its culture and tastes.

This information will be used by government agencies and business as a means of serving the people better. But it also could be used for more sinister purposes.

Leading the battle to safeguard Americans from abuse by computer is Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights.

Not long ago he made a speech at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania. His subject was "Computers and Individual Privacy."

"Our founding fathers," he said, "with all their vision, could not have foreseen the 'memory banks' and 'printouts' that are beginning to dominate our society."

"Our present legal system affords no protections against the excesses of computers, and no adequate legal remedies for the injuries they may cause."

The Senator pointed out that beyond the immediate legal and practical threats to individuals, "There is a greater danger to our social fabric presented by the network of computer systems which criss-cross our nation."

"These mammoth communications devices, while encouraging actual surveillance in certain circumstances under certain conditions, have also created a climate of apprehension and fear of 'snoopers' - private and official."

What's the Senator's answer to all this?

The nationwide computerization of personnel records, credit records and surveys, which could involve invasion of privacy by government and business, must be controlled by strict rules at all levels, he says.

Now that's something we can all support.

Larry Lindsay says: "The only auto mechanism that works less efficiently with lubrication is the driver."

LEGALIZED POT - STILL A PIPE DREAM?

James P. Cahill, 19-year-old son of Gov. William T. Cahill of New Jersey, is scheduled to receive a court hearing on charges of possession of marijuana in Philadelphia on Wednesday (Feb. 4).

"You know, some day there could be a reefer hour instead of a cocktail hour," a student forecast nearly three years ago. That hour hasn't come despite increasing acceptance of the use of marijuana. But the legal assault on anti-pot laws is mounting. Penalties for its possession and use are likely to be reduced by this session of Congress.

Even the Nixon administration - the symbol of "squareness" to the stoned generation - is supporting legislation to moderate existing laws. Attorney General John N. Mitchell has noted that present federal laws making possession of marijuana a felony provide penalties that can exceed those for manslaughter or sabotage.

State laws - under which most marijuana convictions are made - are particularly harsh. Attention was focused upon them recently by the sentencing of a 21-year-old to a 50-year prison term in Texas for selling two marijuana cigarettes, and the imposition of a 20-year term to a Virginia youth found with 6.5 pounds of the stuff in his possession.

For years such severity attracted virtually no public attention, possibly because the use of marijuana was limited primarily to the ghetto and marginal society. But the last five years have seen an explosive growth in the use of pot. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D Mass.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics, has estimated that about 12 million Americans have used marijuana at least once. From 30 to 40 per cent of today's college students and 20 per cent of the high school seniors have tried it.

Pot smoking by the children of the middle class has its political effects in Washington, where some official families are tormented by the discovery of drug use among their children. It has led to demands for stiff penalties for the drug "pusher" - but more flexible treatment of mere users.

Legalization of marijuana has been proposed by some, including Dr. Margaret Mead, the anthropologist. She recently told a Senate committee that "We are damaging our country, our laws and the relations between young and old by its prohibition. This is far more dangerous than any overuse."

The bill just passed by the Senate - the Controlled Dangerous Substances Act of 1969 - does not legalize pot. It would make simple possession of marijuana and other "dangerous" drugs a misdemeanor, subject to a jail term of one year or less but giving a judge authority to suspend the sentence for a first offender. The aim of the bill is to concentrate on professional drug peddlers. They could be jailed for up to 12 years and fined $25,000 or both.

The federal government also has drafted a model narcotics law for the states which it hopes the various legislatures will enact. Already, the Illinois jail sentence for persons caught with a small amount of pot has been changed to a one year maximum, compared to the earlier two-year minimum. Nebraska subjects first offenders to a seven-day blitz course on the danger of drugs.

Perhaps the major block to legalization of marijuana in the near future is the lack of agreement on its effects. Scientists and laymen differ as to whether it is harmful and leads to the use of "hard" drugs. Such a study is being made by the National Institute of Mental Health. It has promised answers within two years. Until then, at least, legalized pot will remain a pipe dream.

Ben Franklin said it: "Tis easier to suppress the first desire, than to satisfy all that follow it."

Call of the Wild. In Nashville, members of Vanderbilt University's Kappa Alpha Order (Southern) eagerly chased what they thought was their deodorized pet skunk, name of General Sherman, learned too late it was another skunk.

If you want to enjoy a pleasing sensation, tell a man you have heard something about him. He will think it is something mean, of course. Then tell him something pleasant. He will glow like a school boy, and both of you will feel better all day. Don't tell people the mean things you hear about them. That is inexcusable.

"A tax cut is the kindest cut of all," stated Mr. Robert C. Tyson, Finance Committee Chairman of U.S. Steel. He then continued: "I believe that... the most important long-range tax reform for the general well-being of both the public and private sectors (of the economy) is tax reduction... no one is ever normally impelled to earn or produce anything by the knowledge that the fruits of his labor will be taxed away from him." Mr. Tyson further stated, "a man may... produce in spite of, but never because of, taxes."

NEW YORK (AP) - Every period of human life is like a Christmas tree - it has its good side and its bad side.

This month, while the rest of America will be celebrating the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington, I'll be figuratively lighting a birthday cake of my own, one lit by a bonfire of 59 candles.

"How many did you say, Harold-59? Why, you don't look a year over 58. And if you took off 30 or 35 pounds, you probably wouldn't look over 57."

Well, thanks everybody, thanks. There's nothing like a kind word to lift the human spirit.

Naturally, I suppose you all want to know how I feel about being 59. Well, I feel pretty much like the fellow in a story Abraham Lincoln used to like to tell.

This man had been tarred and feathered and ridden out of town by a group of citizens he had unintentionally offended. As he was plucking the tar and feathers off himself, one lone sympathizer asked him how he felt.

"Well," said the victim ruefully, "if it weren't for the prestige, I'd just as soon have skipped the whole experience."

Becoming 59 isn't so bad in itself. What makes it memorable is that it means you are entering your 60th year of life, and that does kind of pull a fellow up short.

There are certain birthdays that make a person want to lie down and cry. With a maiden lady it is her 30th; with a man it's his 40th. With a married woman it's the year in which her last child leaves home.

The beginning of one's 60th year is also a kind of personal landmark for anybody. To reverse a common figure of speech, it is a time when he can begin to see the darkness at the end of the tunnel.

It is a time when he first really realizes - and it comes with the blow of an inner thunderclap - that he will never do again as many things as he has done before. He doesn't have that many years left.

It is a time for stocktaking and inventory. Does he need an operation or some dental work done? Better do them now, while his company's health program will help pay the medical bills.

It is time for him to read the fine print in his life and accident insurance policies and see if there are any changes to be made.

It is time for him to study his pension program. If it looks inadequate, he'll have to quit hanging around pool halls and start saving more money.

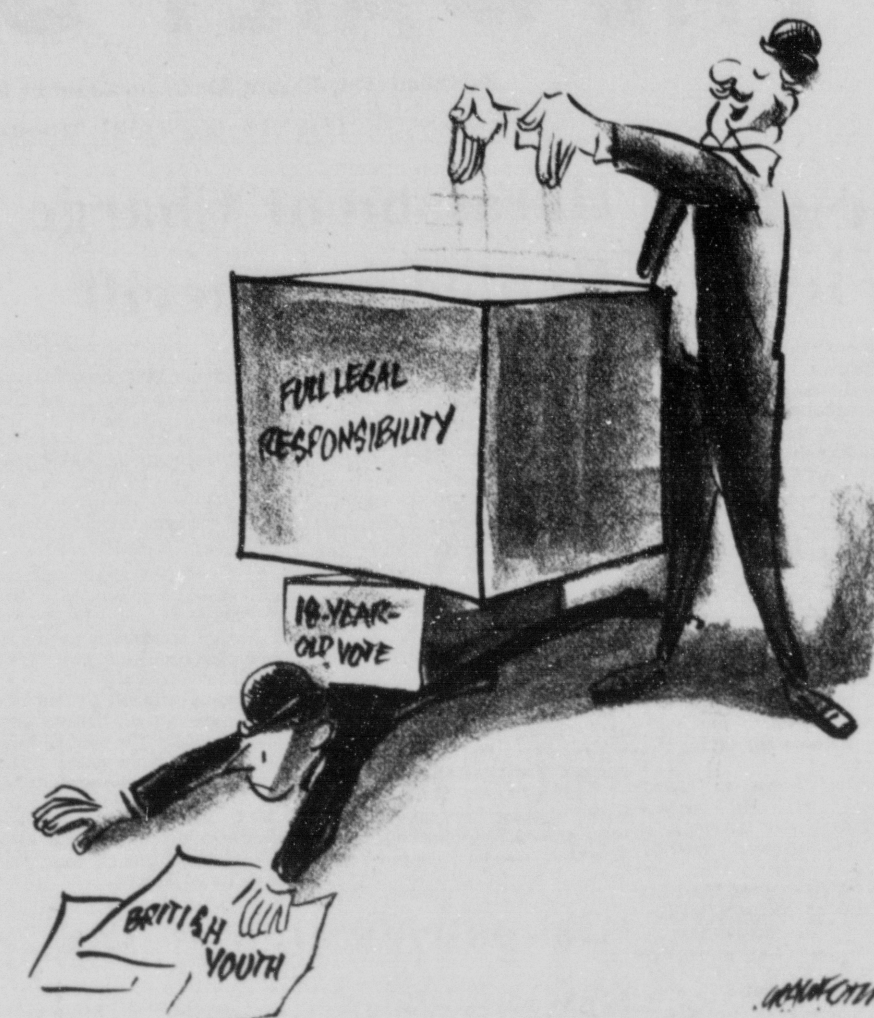

It is time for him to consider giving up his worst bad habits; that is, if he can do so without his body dying from the surprise. After all, it is a considerable shock to the system to initiate reforms to it in its sixth decade.

It is time for him to get around to doing all the things he has postponed because he was too busy. For example, if he has always yearned to see Bali, now is the time to go. The girls there look better to a fellow on his feet at 59 than to one in a wheel chair at 70.

It is time, if he feels his Deity is dead or dying, to revive him with a little heart-to-heart resuscitation.

Would you like to drink a toast with me on my 59th birthday? Thank you. By the way, make mine Geritol.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol rendered a total of 36,138 services to the motoring public last year on the nearly 750 miles of completed inter-state highway. Included in the total number of services was aid given to 10,772 drivers because of mechanical breakdown, 9,434 services due to tire failure, 8,813 aides rendered to motorists out of gasoline, services given to 163 vehicles on fire and 780 miscellaneous services.

The Highway Patrol also reported that 897 abandoned vehicles on the interstate highways were towed away.

Interstate Highway 70, from Kansas City to St. Louis, was the scene of the most services performed on any one Missouri super-highway. The Highway Patrol rendered 14,158 services on I-70. The next highest was Interstate Highway 44, from St. Louis to just west of Joplin, with 6,324 services.

A total of 5,279 traffic accidents were investigated by the Highway Patrol on the interstate highways in 1969. The traffic fatality toll on the State's super-highways last year was 133.

Captain F.W. Shadwell, head of the Patrol's Traffic Division, noted that over 3,000 more services were rendered to motorists on the interstate highways last year as compared to 1968. He also pointed out that over a thousand more accidents were investigated on the super-highways by the state law enforcement agency. The number of persons killed, however, was less than in 1968 when 150 persons died on Missouri's interstate highways.

DRESS TIPS: Softly colored (pastel) shirts will set off your summer tan better than the bolder colors. We know a smart businessman who keeps three extra ties in his desk - a blue, gray and brown. Then, if the gray or soup splashes at lunch, the extra ties come in handy. Wrinkles will often come out of a jacket if it is brushed well with lightly dampened brush before hanging up. Splashes on your clothes from passing cars on rainy days are usually mud spots. If allowed to dry, they can generally be brushed off. If not, rub with cool water.

WASHINGTON - Operating behind the gleaming glass walls of his lavish Washington headquarters, President Felipe Herrera of the Inter-American Development Bank has become one of the most powerful men in the Western Hemisphere.

As the ruler of an institution that loans at least $600 million a year to Latin American countries to aid their development, he has enormous influence with the business and political leaders of the borrower nations.

But behind the prestigious facade of this international banking institution, this column has uncovered a tangle of haphazard lending practices, outright waste and attempts by the suave Herrera to use the bank to polish his personal image. Most of the misused money, of course, was bestowed upon the bank by the American taxpayers.

During Herrera's 10-year reign as the bank's first president, its funds have been put to uses never intended by the governments, which put up the money to stimulate economic development in Latin America. For example, Herrera used bank money to mortgage his swanky home in an exclusive Washington neighborhood.

The bank's funds have also been used to publish three slick editions of Herrera's long-winded speeches. And his deeds are prominently displayed in an impressive ream of costly bank newsletters, periodicals, and other publications. Indeed, the bank shelled out $269,000 last year on printing alone.

-BOOTS-TRAP ECONOMIST-
Although he holds no graduate degrees in economics and his theories are taken seriously few places outside the bank, Herrera travels far and wide to pontificate about them. In one case, the bank shelled out $7,000 to finance a frivolous three-day seminar in Mexico City where Herrera held forth at length about what might happen in Latin America in the next 33 years.

Because Herrera is absolute boss at the bank, little is accomplished during his frequent absences. This contributes to a frantic year-end rush to approve tens of millions in loans. In one year when Herrera's junkets were particularly numerous, approximately $140 million in loans were rammed through the board of directors in the final ten days of December.

When he is not publishing or traveling, Herrera finds other ways to fritter away the bank's resources. For instance, the bank's present headquarters in Washington is reliably estimated to be worth between $7.5 million and $8 million. Yet Herrera paid nearly $10 million for it five years ago, when it was worth even less.

Not satisfied with wasting several million dollars on the headquarters, Herrera recently ought to purchase a fabulous new building which would have cost $35 million. Aside from a fat price, the deal would have required the bank to loan the builders $19 million, a transaction that would hardly have aided the development of Latin America. Last-minute U.S. objections headed off the deal.

-$40,000 PENTHOUSE SUITE-
Herrera has a plush suite of offices on the bank's 11th floor, but these became inadequate for his expensive tastes. So he rented and remodeled the penthouse of the office building next door, and ordered a special entrance constructed.

The new suite contains four dining rooms and a richly appointed office that, to the knowledge of bank employees, has never been used by anyone.

There are also sundry rural and coastal cottage compounds, estates, yacht clubs, and metropolitan apartment houses in fashionable districts, long luxuriously occupied by the anti-Carswell contingent which hardly are noted for their black or ethnic minority residents. So if this be the yardstick of one man, let it be the measure of all.

As for Judge Carswell's early literary endeavors, they'd hardly qualify for an H.L. Mencken award. But they were written - and spoken - when he was in his 20s. Mr. Reuther knew this when he dispatched communications to the 17 members of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"It is essential that one who ascends to the highest court must have an unqualified record of commitment to the cause of human rights," wrote the redhead.

True. But if Harold Carswell's words of his youth are to be the standards, then so should Mr. Reuther's. Would "Walter" want his 20s to be the standards by which he will be judged? I hardly think so. Harold Carswell was about 28 years old when he wrote his "white supremacy" speech. When Reuther was that age, give a year or so, he and his brother Victor were either cycling through Europe or working in the Gorki auto plant in the USSR.

The Reuthers had a ball which has a bearing on all this. They stayed in the Soviet Union for over 16 months. They wrote some mighty silly letters reflecting their joy over the remarking of the proletarian world - letters which have plagued them since.

Of all people, Walter Reuther raised in a Social Democratic home, and knowledgeable in the ways of the Socialist movement, should know that although Mao wrote that life and social mores are full of contradictions, it is nonetheless true.

Walter Reuther has marched with Mrs. Coretta King. He has eulogized her late husband. He has orated for hours about the rights of the black community. But not until some two years ago was there a Negro in the UAW's high command. His Alliance for Labor Action is based on the unionization of the blacks, organizing the unorganized. Yet there is but one black in the coalition's huge leadership - executive committee complex.

This is one of the contradictions with which Mr. Reuther must contend even today at 62.

Faced with this, Mr. Reuther would justifiably fume and foam were he to be asked, as Sen. Birch Bayh asked Judge Carswell, if he were lying when he said he found racism obnoxious.

Those who disagreed with Mr. Nixon's appointment - once they had the judge's word - should have hammered at the Floridian's competency as a jurist. Especially since there were no conflicts of economic interest. That is what the NAACP's Roy Wilkins did. He spoke of the judgment of the judge on "basic considerations of fitness." That is the point.

The children's playground slide may pave the way for a new adult craze for the young at heart.

With as many as 14 stainless steel channels side by side, the most recently built slides are 30 feet high, 30 feet wide and 150 feet long. Sliders sitting on burlap mats can reach speeds of 30 miles an hour during the 10-second ride. Waxed stainless steel with a matte finish forms the skin of the slide. A corrugated understructure can be used as a heating channel to extend operations of the slides beyond the summer season.

Suddenly he saw a driverless car rolling slowly toward him. Thinking quickly he ran to the car, jumped in, and pulled on the emergency brake with a jerk. As he got out, feeling proud, a man walked up. "Well," said the hero, "I stopped it."

"Yeah, I know. I was pushing it."

JUDGMENT AT THE BAR:
Ted Kennedy, Walther Reuther Asked to Meet Standards They Ask of Judge Carswell

Washington, D.C.: -- Certainly there must be times when politicians, those artisans of compromise, rise to moments of compassion. But these moments are scarce - as witness the inquisition of Judge G. Harold Carswell.

The inquisitors, such as Senators Edward Kennedy and Joseph Tydings, with a sharp assist from Walter Reuther, might well have turned to the Belgian metaphysical symbolist, Maurice Maeterlinck, who somewhere wrote that "I have never for one instant seen clearly within myself, how then would you have me judge the deeds of others?"

Could Ted Kennedy, or Walter Reuther or Joe Tydings stand the test they put to Judge Carswell - that of standing by what they said and did when they were in their 20s? Certainly this will anger my friend Ted Kennedy - but would he want his political ambitions measured by early circumstance?

If one is talking of segregation, as he did during the early hours of the Senate confirmation hearing, is it unfair to ask Sen. Kennedy, in turn, why the Kennedy family chose to live in Bronxville, N.Y.? At the time they did it would have taken Gen. Patton's Third Army to get a Negro into that handsome community just north of New York City unless the black was a maid. Nor do the records reveal many - if any - families of Jewish or Italian extraction at the time living near the attractive estate on Pondville Road.

Until comparatively recently this community has been a headache and heartache to those who fight for the principles Ted Kennedy now uses to lacerate Judge Carswell. The Floridian is demeaned, as is his sponsor and patron, President Nixon, when the judge is asked to prove that he now finds white supremacy "obnoxious and abhorrent."

No one would ask this of the United Auto Workers Union President Reuther who has a Florida home near Fort Myers.

And when it comes to the golf courses used by many of the Senators' political allies and intimates, it would take considerable listings of clubs which are even-stevens with the Capital City Links being used to stiletto Harold Carswell.

There are also sundry rural and coastal cottage compounds, estates, yacht clubs, and metropolitan apartment houses in fashionable districts, long luxuriously occupied by the anti-Carswell contingent which hardly are noted for their black or ethnic minority residents. So if this be the yardstick of one man, let it be the measure of all.

Ann Landers Aphrodisiac Formula May Substitute French Horns?

Dear Ann Landers: Everyone in this office was interested in the letter from the man who returned from Vietnam with an aphrodisiac—powdered reindeer horns. We are well aware that phony sex potions have been around for centuries, but somehow this stuff, as described by the soldier, sounds like the real McCoy.

We live in Michigan. There are no reindeer up here. Would just plain deer horns be O.K.? Please advise. —F.L. and J.

Dear F. L. and J.: I am certain that plain deer horns would be just as effective as reindeer horns. If you can't locate deer horns, you might try goat horns, or fog horns, French horns or shoe horns. The results, I assure you, will be the same. Zero.

Dear Ann Landers: I couldn't believe my eyes when I read your advice to "Pestered Louise." You said it is bad manners to drop in on people unexpectedly and that no one should be a sitting duck for anybody who knows how to ring the doorbell.

What is wrong with you that you don't like company? From your column one gets the impression you love people, but such statements as this make me wonder.

I'm tickled pink when someone drops in. I can think of no greater compliment. I'm not a fussbudget about my house. If I isn't neat as a pin, I don't care. I serve whatever is on hand and if I don't have anything to serve I say so.

Please change your advice. It doesn't sound like you. But then you hear from so many nutty people, maybe you are getting a little nutty yourself. —Kentucky Ella.

Dear Ella: Yes, I do hear from some nutty people, but every now and then I get a lovely letter from a charming person like you so it even out. I did say it is inconsiderate to drop in unexpectedly and I meant it. People who are uninvited and unexpected are usually unwelcome. At least, that's the way I see it.

Dear Ann Landers: What can be done about a 45-year-old mother who thinks she is a teenager? Our 16-year-old daughter is getting more uncommunicative and angry by the day. I am sure her mother's behavior is at the bottom of it.

Our daughter Lottie has many friends, both boys and girls and they congregate at our place. The kids play table tennis, sing, turn on the hi-fi and dance by the hour. "Mom" loves to dance with the boys and they tell her she's out of sight. She is a great dancer and I think she is giving the girls more competition than she realizes.

I don't believe a woman in her 40's should be wearing mini skirts and kicking up her heels with her daughter's boyfriends. Mom insists she is chaperoning. I don't think teen-agers need that much chaperoning. Do you? —Scarsdale.

Dear Scars: Parents should be under the roof when their teen-agers entertain, but they should not plant themselves in the middle of the action and act like part of the crowd.

A mother who is attractive and a good hooper should turn down the voltage around her daughter's friends. Without realizing it, she is competing with her daughter and creating trouble.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage—What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Weightless Coats Have a Warm Glow

You can identify coats in mohair by their weightlessness and the heavenly halo glow that surrounds them. Double-breasted style (left) is a masterpiece of elegance. It back-swings with two side pleats and is belted in leather and links. Fabric is an oatmeal tweed with a soft, curly surface. Double-breasted coat (right) is in one of the dreamiest fabrics of the season—a fleecy eyelash plaid containing mohair by Adam Watt. It has a buoyancy that makes it feel weightless, yet it provides warmth. Spaced, turned-down collar hugs the neck and the body is fitted. These are Henry Fredericks designs.

Indians Tightens Hold

Southeast Missouri's only unbeaten high school basketball team, the New Madrid Indians, tightened its hold on the number one spot in this week's Daily Standard basketball poll as it collected 11 of the 14 votes cast by the 14-member coaches panel.

Apparently the Indians second win of the season over highly respected Matthews, combined with Malden's first defeat last week didn't change all of the coaches' minds of the poll as the Green Waves collected three number one votes.

The top seven teams held their positions for the third straight week while the bottom three continued its game of musical chairs.

Chaffee moved up to eighth to replace Parma who fell to 10th while Matthews and Charleston moved into the elite while Richland bowed out. Matthews took over the ninth spot while Charleston moved into a 10th place tie with Parma.

Once beaten Delta collected 101 points as it picked up 20 points from last week and trails second place Malden by 27 points, who trails New Madrid by eight.

The Dunklin county and Bootheel conference tournaments are all that remains before regional elimination begins and the battle to represent Southeast Missouri at Columbia, Rolla or St. Louis is underway.

Delta C-7 is the only squad to see further tournament play as all the other members of this week's poll have completed its tournament circuit and now ready themselves for the regionals at either Hayti, Bloomfield, Clarkton, Bell City or Sikeston.

Seven of the top 10 are slated for action tonight with Malden visit to Advance drawing the attention. Delta will be at Kelly; Charleston at Richland; Poplar Bluff at Bloomfield; Delta C-7 host Gideon and Parma host Clarkton.

All but New Madrid is slated for Friday evening action that has Matthews at Charleston for the top battle. Dexter will host Sikeston; Advance will go to Jackson; Poplar Bluff host Cape Central; Chaffee host I-SC; Malden host North Pemiscot; Parma will be at East Prairie and Delta at Southland.

Dexter will be only top rated team in action Saturday night as it goes to Jackson for a SEMO conference battle.

THE POLL with first place votes in parenthesis,

Bruins Unanimous Choice

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mighty UCLA, which ran its perfect record through 16 games last week while upset tremors rocked half a dozen other top teams, was the unanimous No. 1 choice today in The Associated Press' major college basketball poll.

UCLA, the nation's only unbeaten major power following the initial falls of Kentucky, St. Bonaventure and Jacksonville, received all 31 first place votes in the weekly ballot of sports writers and sportscasters across the country.

The Bruins remained firmly entrenched atop the pack with a total of 620 points after whipping California 87-72 Friday night and trashing Stanford 102-84 Saturday night. Once-beaten South Carolina won three games during the week and climbed from fourth place to the No. 2 spot, replacing Kentucky, with 534 points.

Kentucky, ambushed by Vanderbilt 89-81 Saturday, slipped to third position and St. Bonaventure, upended by Villanova 64-62 earlier in the week, dipped from No. 3 to No. 4. Jacksonville, sixth a week ago, fell to eighth following an 89-83 loss to Florida State.

New Mexico State, Marquette and Illinois also stumbled—and lost ground in the rankings. The Aggies, downed by Creighton 72-68, dropped from fifth to sixth; the Warriors, knocked off by Chicago Loyola 76-72, from seventh to ninth and the Illini, stunned by Notre Dame 86-83, from No. 10 to No. 14.

record and total points at right:

- (1) N. Madrid (11) 19-0 136
- (2) Malden (3) 18-1 128

- (8) Chaffee 13-2 23
- (9) Matthews 11-6 15
- (10) Parma 11-6 10

(Charleston 12-5 10)
OTHERS WITH VOTES, not necessarily in order of number of votes received: Cape Central; Sikeston; Portageville; Hayti North; South Pemiscot; Puxico; East Prairie; Kennett.

North Carolina State, which won twice, moved up from eighth to fifth; North Carolina jumped from ninth to seventh after winning its only regular start and Penn, a two-time winner, switched positions with Illinois.

Davidson, Houston and Ohio University, which headed the Second Ten in last week's balloting, took unexpected spins as well, the Wildcats bowing to Wake Forest 74-73, the Cougars to Utah State 91-84 and the Bobcats to Wisconsin 72-69.

The resulting realignment sent Southern California from 15th to the No. 11 spot, Florida State from 18th to 12th and Drake from 16th to 13th. Davidson dropped to No. 15, behind Illinois, followed by Houston, Columbia, Kansas State, Villanova, and Iowa.

Ohio U. lost its spot in the Top Twenty, with Villanova moving in from the unranked list.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — There is no sound in the world to compare with the engine whine and exhaust scream of a Ferrari automobile at speed. Even those purists who consider stock car racing or Indianapolis type racing or drag strip racing the only way to go agree that until you've heard a 12 cylinder Ferrari sports car go by at better than a 150 mph you haven't heard anything at all.

Unfortunately, the sound of a Ferrari symbolizes not only automobile racing but "winning" in the sport of speed. Last year Ferrari didn't win. The bright red races from Maranello, Italy didn't win because they didn't show up to race.

You should understand that like the cars he manufactures, Commendatore Enzo Ferrari is a different and unusual type of being. He is the boss. He demands and gets perfection. That's the main reason Ferrari racers have won the World Constructors' championship 12 of 17 years since 1953.

In 1968 the world governing body of racing the Federation Internationale de l'Automobile (FIA), unexpectedly reduced the maximum engine size of prototype racers to 3-liters (183 cubic inches). Ferrari had won the 1967 championship with a four-liter engine.

The Commendatore was made. So mad that he withdrew almost completely from international endurance racing in 1968 and 1969.

FIA rules state that if a car is built for both road use and racing and numbers at least 25 completely built units it can use a 5-liter engine. Ferrari has never made more than a handful of specially built prototypes and those were not for sale.

But now that's changed. Ferrari is returning to the racing wars.

Last weekend here at the Daytona International Speedway three new Ferrari 5-liter coupes called the 512S, of which exactly 25 are being manufactured, raced in the 24 Hours of Daytona road race.

A three-car team headed by Mario Andretti/Arturo Merzario, Jackie Ickx/Peter Schetty and Nino Vaccarella Ignazio Giunti will have only one thought in mind—put Ferrari back into victory lane.

Early in January, Andretti took one of the 512S's around the 3.81 mile road course at 127 mph. This knocked five mph off the track record set last year by Vic Elford in a 908 Porsche. Ferrari was said to have smiled.

The 24 Hours of Daytona comes right on the heels of the Union 76 Performance Trials. The Trials were a different kind of motorizing contest. Instead of big name drivers taking the spotlight, new 1970 model automobiles were put to the grind.

Sixty new cars were bought off the showroom floor and shipped here where they were tested under National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) supervision in acceleration, braking and economy.

The new cars were divided into nine classes according to size, price, horsepower, etc. Each car was given a percentage score on its performance in economy, braking from 65 mph, and acceleration from 25 to 75 mph. The performance percentages were added up and an overall class winner was determined.

Here's the way the results turned out. In Class I Super Deluxe it was Buick Riviera with the win. In Class II Deluxe 8 cylinder, Pontiac Bonneville took the honors. In Class III Medium 8 cylinder, Pontiac Executive was the winner. Class IV Standard 8 cylinder saw an Ambassador DPL grab the honors. Class V Intermediate 8 cylinder went to Ford Torino. F Hornett SST won the Class VI Compact 6 cylinder class. The hot Class VIII sport intermediate class was won by a Buick GS 455 with Plymouth Cuba winning Super Sport Compact Class VIII and Mercury Cougar capturing the Sport Compact Class IX.

With the Performance Trials, the 24 Hours completed, and the entire Speedweeks month of February upon us, this small Florida town is a pretty busy place.

Jayhawks, Tigers Win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Count Ted Owens among those pushing for a 30-second rule to eliminate stalling in college basketball.

The Kansas coach watched nervously Monday night while Oklahoma's discipline-weakened Sooners played keepaway from his Jayhawks for the first 15 minutes of their Big Eight Conference game at Lawrence, Kan.

Kansas exploded for 14 points in a three-minute span late in the first half and went on to riddle the Sooners, 78-41, but that didn't soothe Owens' ruffled feathers over the slowdown tactics.

After congratulating Oklahoma Coach John MacLeod on "good strategy" because the Sooners were playing without three players benched for breaking team curfew, Owens talked of the threat to college basketball.

"If every game was played like that," Owens said, "you wouldn't get anybody to watch... If we had sunk back into a zone defense, Oklahoma could have held the ball all night."

Owens said he plans to push for adoption of a rule to force the offensive team to shoot within 30 seconds.

While Kansas escaped Oklahoma's upset plan to raise its Big Eight record to 3-2 and remain in the thick of things, Kansas State held solid control of first place, whipping Iowa State 82-64 for the Wildcats' sixth conference victory without defeat.

Missouri also remained on the Wildcats' trail with a 4-2 league record and just about finished Colorado's hopes for a repeat championship, beating the Buffaloes, 90-73.

Oklahoma State topped Nebraska, 81-58, leaving the Cornhuskers with a 2-3 Big Eight record.

It was his last Big Eight action until Saturday, when Oklahoma State, 2-4, is at Oklahoma, 1-4, in the afternoon television game, while Kansas State goes to Colorado, 2-4, Missouri to Iowa State, 3-4, and Kansas to Nebraska at night.

Dave Robisch, ignited Kansas' run of 14 straight points and went on to collect 26 points, while Kansas doubled the score on the Sooners at one point, 78-39. Cliff Ray led Oklahoma, which was without Garfield Heard, Harry Brown and Vester Marshall, with 12.

Kansas State led Iowa

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Size and speed— a pair of vital ingredients for a winning football team — were pre-eminent as the Football Cardinals drafted 22 players for 1970.

"I think we helped ourselves a great deal," Head Coach Charley Winner commented after the two-day draft had seen 462 college players selected by the 26 NFL teams.

"We got some outside speed in Larry Stegent and Charlie Pittman, good sized linebackers in Jim Corrigan and Don Parish, a big defensive lineman in Greg Lens and a quick offensive lineman in Church Hutchison.

"And you always hope that there are some sleepers in lower rounds — a speedster like Paul White or Charles Collins, or a big line prospect like Colorado's Cliff Meely and Jim Creighton both fouled out in the final 5/4 minutes. Henry Smith got 25 points and Don Tomlinson 25 for Missouri, while Mike Coleman topped Colorado with 20.

Oklahoma State got a

10-point lead over Nebraska with 16 minutes left, went into Henry Iba's patented delay game and cashed 18 free throws on one-and-one situations to trounce the Huskers. Bob Buck had 25 points for the Cowboys and Tom Scantlebury had 18 for Nebraska.

Mike Siwek or Jack Thomas. Many of these boys had good college credentials, and we hope they develop into top NFL players."

Speedy Stegent, a 9.8 running back from Texas A & M, and fleet Pittman, a similarly swift outside threat from Penn State, should help the attack. Pittman broke most of Lenny Moore's rushing records at Penn State and

Trout Season Opens

Whether the sun is shining and it is 60 degrees or the cold breath of winter dips the mercury to six above, thousands of anxious fishermen will be waiting for the 6:30 a.m. whistle March 1st marking the beginning of the 1970 Trout Season.

Director of Missouri State Parks, Joseph Jaeger, Jr., predicts another record opening day at the three trout parks, especially since the season opens on a weekend. Jaeger said, "We are expecting happy, shoulder-to-shoulder fishermen fighting for a place to stand as well as a place to park."

Concessionaires at Roaring River State Park near Cassville, Montauk State Park near Salem, and Bennett Spring State Park near Lebanon reported accommodations were filled within a week after reservations were accepted.

Dredging operations are presently underway at the most popular trout fishing spot in the state, Bennett Spring State Park, to help clean the stream of gravel and silt from last fall's flood. Other improvements in the park include completion of a $190,000 sewer system which replaced a sand filter disposal system with a lagoon meeting Water Pollution Board standards. Both the dining lodge and store parking lots have been paved, and several new nature trails are now marked. The Park Board expects to complete 40 new trailer sites by mid-summer. trailer sites by mid-summer.

At Montauk State Park an extension of the water system is now complete and work is continuing on the sewer program. More than 50 new campsites with electric hookups will soon be available and work is underway on an amphitheater.

The Missouri Conservation Commission is finishing an extension of the stream at Roaring River State Park. The extension is nearly an eighth of a mile long near the area where Bass Lake was drained. The Park Board has made several camp ground improvements.

Jaeger notes last year's trout tag sales record included 274,603 sold at these three parks whose total attendance was more than three million.

Jaeger said, "To a trout fisherman, the important thing is to participate in the opening day ritual. It is a spring-welcoming celebration with the catching of a trout an extra bonus."

TROUT FISHING will be improved at Bennett Spring State Park near Lebanon this year as a result of dredging operations by the Missouri State Park Board and Conservation Commission. (By Hadley Irwin)

IN FIVE YEARS this orbital space station could be in operation. Major components of station are core module, right, which would be outfitted for crewmen and scientific instruments; winglike solar panels to provide power from sun; connecting boom; and Saturn II rocket stage, which would be part of launch vehicle and also a counterweight to create artificial gravity. In this North American Rockwell artist's design, an Apollo spacecraft flies in to dock with the 12-man station.

FLORAL SURROUNDINGS—Cotton makes for pleasant surroundings in this kitchen-dining area. Waverly's blue and green floral print covers kitchen cabinets and makes a scalloped awning across the windows. Companion wallpaper is used on one wall and chair covers of blue and green cotton plaid complete the fresh, clean setting.

The bald eagle, national emblem of this country, is one of many birds in the United States seriously threatened with extinction, says The World Almanac. The encroachments of civilization have often ruined the eagle's nesting grounds and hunters have sometimes killed the majestic bird, thinking it was only a hawk.

Individual
Can Delay
Heart Ails

This is the second of a series of three articles presented by the Missouri Heart Association to inform readers of this newspaper about progress in the field of heart and circulatory diseases.

Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston, a founder and former president of the American Heart Association, is a leading proponent of the idea that the individual -- working conscientiously with his physician -- can do much to avoid or delay heart attack and stroke, which together are responsible for more than 770,000 deaths yearly in this country.

Dr. White's view-- shared by almost all physicians and medical scientists -- is that the risk of heart attack and stroke can be substantially reduced if the individual does certain things and avoids doing certain others. Here are his recommendations:

1. Set up a regimen of regular exercise in accord with your physical condition.

2. Reduce wherever possible consumption of high-cholesterol foods and saturated fats, getting a larger proportion of your fat intake from polyunsaturate (vegetable) fats.

3. Don't gain a pound after the age of 22.

4. Don't smoke cigarettes. And if you are now smoking, stop it immediately.

5. Make a practice of getting a physical examination at least once a year, with prompt medical treatment of any high blood pressure that may be found.

It is difficult to estimate the number of lives that would be saved if everybody followed these recommendations, but consideration of just one of them -- cigarette smoking -- strongly suggests that the number would be most significant. If, for example, smokers enjoyed the same relatively favorable mortality experience as those who never smoked, there would be about 70,000 fewer heart attack deaths in this country each year.

Certain so-called risk factors-- notably sex (men are more prone to heart attack than women), age and heredity -- are beyond control.

But there are risk factors you can control. They include physical inactivity, excessive cholesterol in the blood, obesity, cigarette smoking and high blood pressure.

It should be noted that the precise mechanisms by which these risk factors work are imperfectly understood. Nevertheless, many studies suggest that minimizing these factors can play an important role in enabling people to avoid or delay heart attack.

Take cholesterol, for example. There is excellent documentation showing that men aged 30-60 with a high blood cholesterol measurement suffer heart attacks three times more often than those with a low measurement.

It has also been demonstrated that many individuals can lower their blood cholesterol by avoiding high cholesterol foods, and getting a larger percentage of their fat requirements from unsaturated (vegetable) fats and a smaller proportion from saturated (animal) fats.

These facts indicate why it may be extremely wise to get oneself inside the low cholesterol bracket. Although more research is needed to define the role of cholesterol in coronary heart disease, many physicians feel that the evidence is sufficiently convincing to recommend a dietary regimen for their susceptible patients and to adopt one for themselves.

Especially is this so when the individual has one or more of the other risk factors such as hypertension, obesity and cigarette smoking since the hazard increases with the number of risk factors present.

Next: The importance of controlling hypertension.

Dear Editor:

TOO MANY VIETNAMS

The same repeat performance all over again and again. The reason and causes of war we surmise, are hard to separate. The good from the evil. They are twins by nature and are bonded together by the rules of society.

The name of the game is money. Some may call it economics, it puts on various forms of disguise. Like nature, we have storms and tornadoes, then a calm, the sun comes out and the weather is wonderful.

We often say to ourselves, can't we be peaceful of mind (the rules of the game aren't played that way). We pick up a newspaper, watch TV and see young people demonstrating and marching, some peaceful, some with destructive intent who would like to destroy our form of government.

I don't think they approve of that old axiom, The King and associates can do no wrong. Even the King is pressured into acts he does not quite approve, but he has commitments to fulfill. That is what you call the "profit gap."

Maybe war is just, but it creates so many side effects. Greed, power, death, and glory, which creates large profits for so few.

When Nixon was campaigning for office he stated, "The public is entitled to a piece of the action." There are two ways to look at his speech, did he mean "figuratively or literally." Those two words have caused more comment than any other word in our English language.

Politics and religion (I won't go into the latter) history speaks for itself.

You hear so much about the credibility gap. I don't think that is our problem but just a figure of speech for want of a better phrase to use. Why don't we call it the practicability gap."

who stands to gain and who will lose. Why not compromise something for everyone. Take the profits from the Vietnam war and turn it over to the government to continue the war for those who feel it is a just war. What happens? WILL THE TWIN EVER MEET.

P.B. Held on Sick List

50 Years Ago
February 3, 1920
Commerce -- P.B. Held has been on the sick list for the past week.

Crowder -- Claude Swanagon was in Sikeston Tuesday on business.

About 140 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Haas helped them celebrate their 14th wedding anniversary Wednesday evening by responding to an invitation to attend a "grown up kids' party" at the City Hall. The guests attended in costumes patterned after those of their childhood.

Last Sunday morning at the preaching service the Rev. S.P. Brite read his resignation as pastor to the congregation of the Sikeston Baptist Church. It will take effect March 1st. Mr. Brite has a call from the Baptist Church at Laramie, Wyo., and will move to that place at the close of his pastorate here.

Court Orders
Estate Turned Over to State

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court has ordered the St. Louis Circuit Court to transfer to the state all the assets of the Jacob L. Babler estate, without any final deduction for the trustees or attorneys at the time of transfer.

It includes the Dr. Edmund A. Babler, Memorial State Park, a 2,400-acre tract in St. Louis County. The park has been transferred to the state.

Jacob L. Babler executed the trust in 1942, three years before his death. He provided that his children, Henry Babler, and Dr. Richard J. Weidert were to be trustees. They could spend up to 7 per cent of the book value of the estate for general park improvements and they could also share annually in 7 per cent of the book value for their services.

Over the 20-year period that ended in 1965 a total of $56,067 was paid out in commissions to the trustees.

"After May 31, 1965," the court said, "the trustees credited themselves with $95,365 each or a total of $190,730." By that time the value of the estate had risen to $2,724,714.

The Supreme Court said it had reached "the conclusion that testator intended to and did provide for the payment of compensation to the trustees on a 'pay as you go' basis; that the intention was that the trustees' compensation consist of a payment of 7 per cent of all disbursements of income and corpus during the year and no further compensation on final distribution at the termination of the trust."

In another case, the Supreme Court said Drury College at Springfield has no present hold on the proceeds from the estate of Lewis Wilkins Hyer, an amount that might have totaled as much as $166,856.

The court said, however, that if any of the key conditions are not met the Ranken-Jordan Home for Convalescent Crippled Children in St. Louis County would lose out and Drury would take over.

The involved case began in 1940 when the late Mary A. L. Ranken Jordan founded the Home on LaDue Rd. in St. Louis County. In 1962 Miss Ettie Amelia Jordan (the court did not spell out their relationship) also created a trust estate to help support the home. It prospered.

"Their friend and fellow philanthropist Lewis Wilkins Hyer created a trust estate for its benefit by a codicil to his will in August, 1962," the court said.

He provided for a payment equal to 5 per cent of the net income of the home but said that "if for any reason the name of the institution is changed or if there is a change in the purposes for which the institution is presently operated or if the operation of the institution is transferred to or taken over by some other organization" then the 5 per cent would go to Drury.

Although there have been adjustments, the court said, they have not been so substantial as to upset the conditions of the Hyer will.

Dexter Couple's
Son Killed,
Wife Held

POPLAR BLUFF — An ex-convict has been charged with murder in Houston, Texas, in connection with the death of a man who has survivors living in Stoddard County. The wife of the murder victim is being held as an accomplice.

The victim, Tony Wayne Clodfelter, 47-year-old used car lot operator, was shot to death between 1 and 1:45 p.m. on Jan. 8 in his office, Houston police told the Daily American Republic.

Clodfelter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Clodfelter, live in Dexter, a brother, John Clodfelter, lives at Bernie, and a sister, Mrs. Laura Nan Ross, lives at Bloomfield.

Police said Leon Colbert, Houston, an ex-convict held in jail on a theft charge at the time of his arrest for the murder, is accused of shooting Clodfelter twice in the head as he sat alone in his car lot office.

Homicide officers said that Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Clodfelter, age 40, wife of the slain man, is also held in jail charged with being an accomplice in the murder. Police said Mrs. Clodfelter has signed statements admitting she hired Colbert to kill her husband for a $20,000 share of the estimated $175,000 in life insurance she expected to collect.

Police said a break in the case—which had been listed as a routine robbery - murder—came when a confidant of Mrs. Clodfelter came to police with the story. Officers said the woman in whom the victim's wife had confided has agreed to testify as a state's witness in the forthcoming trial.

Dunklin Girl
Wounds Self
In Her Head

CAMPBELL — A 19-year-old Campbell area girl suffered a serious gunshot wound of the head Sunday morning at her home.

Cpl. Alvin E. Mills of the Highway Patrol said Miss Karen Lawanda Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wright, Rt. 2, Campbell, was taken to Doctors Hospital for treatment, of a .22-caliber rifle wound.

A hospital spokesman said the girl was given emergency treatment and transferred to Baptist Hospital in Memphis. A physician said she was in serious condition. He said her vital life signs were good when she left the hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Miss Wright, a student at Arkansas State University at Jonesboro last semester who had planned to enroll in Three Rivers Junior College, was found in a 1966 Chevrolet which had been driven out of the driveway and into an embankment near the family home on Route BB three miles west of Holcomb. She was found about 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Cpl. Mills reported.

Mills said the girl sustained a self-inflicted wound in a bedroom of the family home, then made her way to the automobile and managed to drive it a short distance.

Indictments Sought
In $100,000 Theft
Of Checks, Cards

FLORISSANT, Mo. (AP)—Police said Monday they were seeking indictments against two St. Louis men following seizure of more than $100,000 in stolen negotiable checks at a St. Louis residence.

The checks were seized along with more than 40 stolen credit cards, the police said, as culmination to investigation of an armed robbery last Friday in this St. Louis suburb.

George Minze, a police detective, said the checks were stolen during robberies and burglaries from such widespread points as Dayton, Ohio, and Denver, Colo.

"A very conservative estimate would be 50 different offenses over a period of a year to a year and a half," he said.

"Whoever had them had a pretty good thing going. There is better than $5,000 worth of use on the credit cards. A lot of the checks are signed and ready to forge."

Minze said investigation of the Florissant robbery has led to the arrest of one suspect. Another suspect, he said, is at large.

The Gall Of Mr. Hickel
The unmitigated gall of Interior Secretary Hickel, assuring the Trans Alaskan Pipeline System that the pipeline from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez, Alaska, "will indeed be built," is almost beyond belief. I say "almost," because we have all been warned as to what we can expect from this man and the present Administration.

As I understand it, the only authorization for this project at present is an authorization to study the feasibility of such a pipeline and to learn, if possible, what effects would be on the wildlife and the environment. I have read that rights of way have already been laid out and that stacks of the 48-inch pipe are already laid on the site, indicating that the oil combine people are assured that they will be allowed to build their pipeline.

Who could have given them such assurance? To whom does this land belong? What agency but the Department of Interior has the obligation to protect our natural resources from such men as these.

Secretary Hickel does not know what this pipeline might do to one of our few remaining wild and beautiful pieces of real estate. Secretary Hickel does have men working for him who could tell him. There are many other professional wildlife people who could tell him, but apparently his only concern is to turn loose this powerful oil combine, without taking the time to study the situation and its possible effect on the environment.

I guess we should not be surprised with this news, considering how Secretary Hickel handled the Santa Barbara Channel oil slick.

Robert G. DeLaney
Member, Missouri
Conservation Commission
Charleston, Mo.

Dear Charlie,

I would like to take this opportunity to clear up some rumors which are going around pertaining to me being in some kind of serious trouble for being a solicitor of names in the recent referendum petition against the income tax increase. Several people have called me and were wanting to know about these rumors.

I would like to say that Mr. Joe Ellis, Jr. of Charleston, Mo., a state employee informed me on the telephone last Thursday and I quote: "that I was in serious trouble and that the county sheriff of Mississippi County was looking for me because of perjury of the signers of the petitions I had acquired." He had previously called several merchants and asked them if I had left the petitions in their stores or if they had signed their names in my presence.

I in turn called Mr. Pedro Simmons, the sheriff of Mississippi County and I asked him if he had been looking for me and what did he want. Mr. Simmons said, and I quote: "he was trying to find me as a friend, to warn me of serious trouble that I might be getting into over the signatures I had on the petition that I have had signed by various people. Mr. Simmons also said and I quote: "he knew of about 40 people who would sign affidavits to that effect that perjury could be proved against me, and that I might have to go to Jefferson City, if this goes to court for trial and that I had better get me a good attorney."

I informed him that I need no attorney, as I had done nothing illegal and I would be glad to go to Jefferson City, as there was a lot of things going on in Mississippi County that I would like for them to know about, and Mr. Simmons said, and I quote: you would never get to tell them. I told him since they had raised our county taxes on our farm land so much I had worked against any tax increase.

I am wondering since when was it a crime for an individual to go out and acquire signatures on a petition against an income tax increase and to stand up for what I believed was right as an individual tax paying citizen.

I will not ask anyone who signed my petition to withdraw their signatures, as they willfully signed them in my presence and I also had the Senate Bill No. 1, 75th General Assembly to repeal Chapter 143, RSMo, relating to the taxation of income with me when I secured their signatures.

I believe all farmers pay enough tax to take care of their share of school expense and that if the money for the schools were handled carefully, and they would cut down on their spending as we farmer do when our money is tight they too could get by, so therefore I am working for what I believe is right.

I would like for all the people who signed my petition to know that you have done nothing illegal by signing my petition even if people are calling you and saying you have and you are still free to go to the polls on election day and vote for or against the income tax increase.
